PREFACE

This volume was compiled to benefit the family of David J. Read. Therefore, their line from the immigrant to the Read reference is more complete and extensive.

There is a caution however. David J. Read descends from John Chandler (5). You will also find a Read marriage at the end of the descent from Hannah Chandler Abbot (3). At present there is no verification that the two Read lines connect, but research is continuing. Much of the material on line (3) has been contributed by Pat McKnight Read, Berea, OH. There is a third Read reference on page 12 and no connection has been made to either of the others refered to.

Another credit is due Barbara Bean, Concord, N.H. for her contribution of Bayford information.

NOTES

To use this book: It is numbered consecutively throughout. It is in sections by the children of the immigrants and the index will give the page number.
In a list of children: If a name is written all in capitals, you will find that name and number listed as a parent in the next generation. If the name is not capitalized, there is no further information.
Maiden names: maiden names will be found in these brackets [ ].
Spouse and allied birthplaces: In some instances, the person's exact birthplace was not proven. In that place will be the name of the town most closely associated with that family. It may be where the spouse was living at the time of marriage or a place the parents were known to be. It was given as an additional research clue for anyone interested in pursing the allied line.
Cross-references: There are many inter-marriages of allied lines and cousins. I have attempted to cross-reference them, by putting the reference number in parentheses following the name.
Un-numbered people: There are a few children without numbers who were found too late to be inserted with numbers. This does not affect the rest of the system.

William Chandler brought his family from England on The Abigail, a ship in the Winthrop Fleet. He settled in Roxbury, Mass. in 1637 and owned 22 acs. there by 1638. He was made freeman in 1640.

To become a freeman, which was a political right, a man must own land, be a Congregational or Puritan Church member in good standing and be 21 yrs. or older. He then took an oath to serve his government, vote intelligently and attend church.

Unfortunately, William was not to enjoy a long life. He suffered with consumption for nearly a year before he died. It would have been impossible for his family to survive if it had not been for the assistance of his neighbors. They were quite generous to the man they considered very religious and Godly.

As a widow with five young children, Annis had to have had a great struggle to keep her family together.

About a year and a half after William's death, Annis married John Dane of Roxbury. He was born at Barkamstead, Bishops, Eng. He was made freeman at Roxbury 2 June 1641. John had also been married previously and had sons John and Francis and a daughter Elizabeth who married a Mr. How. John, sr. lived some time in Ipswich, Mass. and his son John remained there.

In 1649 John went to General Court to settle William Chandlr's estate. Since John had paid Chandler's debts which amounted to more than Chandler's house and land was worth, and also had raised Chandler's children, the court awarded Dane all of Chandler's property.

John died 14 Sep. 1658 in Roxbury leaving provisions by will for "Annice" and his three children by his first marriage.

Annis married for the third time, John Parmenter, who was born in 1588 and buried in Roxbury 1 Mar. 1671. He was a yeoman and a selectman in Roxbury in 1639. He removed to Sudbury, Mass. and was a Church Deacon there. He had.

* - some records give 19 Nov.
¶ - information provided by Mrs. Barbara Bean

several children by his first marriage and his will mentions a son John, a grandson John and wife "Annie". One of his daughters married John Wood of "Malbery".

Annis wrote her will 1 Nov. 1672 and it was probated 15 Nov. 1683. She left her son John Chandler the estate willed her by John Dane. In turn, John Chandler was to pay her sons John Dane, Thomas and William Chandler, sums of money. To her daughters Hannah Abbot and Sarah Cleves she left all her personal belongings. She requested her sister Mary Wise to "Wisely" divide the belongings with her cousins Elizabeth Denison and Anna Stebbins assisting. Thomas and John Chandler were named executors. \

Annis's father, Francis, was bp. 13 Apr. 1567 and died shortly before 3 Dec. 1622. He was a husbandman or gentleman farmer and owned a fair portion of land in England. Annis's brother Richard was about 3 yrs. older and her brother John about 1 year. younger than her. Their father left his home and other property to Richard and he was to pay his sister 6 pnds. John also received property and likewise was to pay Annis 6 pnds.

Thomas was about seven when he arrived in Boston with his parents. He grew up in Roxbury, Mass. and became a property owner there.

He had moved his family to Andover, Mass. by 1678, being the 23rd. settler, there.

He was a representative to the General Court from Andover 1678-79. George Abbot, sr. and Thomas worked on the committee to survey and divide the lands of Andover which were granted these proprietors by the General Court.

Thomas gained local fame for his actions during the Indian Wars. He served in the Militia as a Lieutenant in "ye foot company" under the command of Capt. Dudley Bradstreet.

He became a blacksmith and developed those talents into a large ironworks.

At this period of history, women had no legal rights, so a husband had to provide fully for his wife in case she survived him. Thomas provided thusly for Hannah: 2 cows; she was to have use of the room they now lived in and it was to be kept warm and comfortable by their son Henry and the firewood was to be cut and brought to her room. For food he specified 10 bu. Indian corn, 10 bu. wheat, 3 bu. rye and 1 bu. malt, to be paid yearly by their sons in specific proportions he names. Henry was also to see that she had apples and a barrel of "cyder". 40s a year from Thomas' income from the ironworks was also to be paid to Hannah.

Thomas was among the most influential and wealthy of the early settlers.

He had a good clear handwriting but Hannah made her mark.

William settled on land provided by his father on 12 June 1697. His father deeded this land (60 acs.) including the house, barns and orchards. Within three months of his inheritance, William sold it all and moved to Westford.

There may have been a hint of displeasure shown when Thomas willed William's three sons a piece of meadow and a bit of swamp to divide equally among themselves. If any died before they came of age, the survivors were to divide it. There is no indication that William was deceased when Thomas made his will, but he is not listed as an heir.

Henry inherited ½ of the homestead and pastureland, sharing with his brother William. He also received ½ share of the clay pit meadow not given to William's sons, ¼ share of the ironworks and some other lands.

His share to his Mother was 8 pnd. 20s 6p in grain, 2 bu. malt, the barrel of "cyder", what apples she needed and her firewood cut and taken to her room. He was also to pay her 10s in cash.

Henry purchased 700 acs. of land in the northwest part of Enfield, Mass. about 1723.

Moses was a blacksmith.

He served in the French and Indian wars. He was a member of the Committees of Inspection and Safety in 1780, in Winthrip, ME.

The Committee of Safety was an executive body established to direct the struggle against the British rule. The Committee of Inspection was to check and report violations of the boycott against British trade. Whether they called themselves a Committee, the Son's of Liberty or just a Whig, these secret organizations were the power that led the colonies into the revolution against England.

The Abbot Genealogy states that George immigrated on the same ship (The Abigail) as the Chandlers.

He had lived in Yorkshire, Eng. and arrived in N.E. in 1637.

He went to Andover, Mass. in 1643 and Hannah followed in 1647 to make a home in their log and thatch cabin.

George was involved in the town affairs and worked with Thomas Chandler in laying out the town.

In 1680, a Mr. Dane, George Abbot and Dudley Bradstreet were appointed, at a town meeting, to "seat the meeting house". If any man or woman sat in any seat except where assigned, they would be fined 20p, to be paid to the town.

George began his will by saying he was "aged and crasey in body". He left a double portion to his eldest son John, which was customary for the time. The rest was left to Hannah to disperse among the other sons as she saw fit. He did request she treat them equally unless they were disobedient and their behavior caused them to be cut short.

It was unusual in those times, for a wife to be given such a responsibility. George had great praise for Hannah's love and prudence in helping to get and save what God had blessed them with.

Hannah later became the third wife of Rev. Francis Dane, her step-brother. He was about 74 yrs. old when they married. His sons Nathaniel and Lt. Francis were from a previous marriage.

The area Francis and Hannah lived in, was set off as North Andover by the time they married. Rev. Dane was the 2nd. Minister at the church there.

Until 1683 the Rev.'s salary was paid in wheat and Indian corn. At that time, the town voted to pay 5 pnds. of his salary in silver.

The year of 1692 had considerable dealings with witchcraft. The Rev. tried to help people imprisioned for witchcraft and he was impicated in their dealings. It was a difficult period for him, but his traits of piety and uprightness alone, cleared his name.

From his estate, Hannah received 20 pnds. and the chests and goods she had brought into the marriage.

A 6 ft. high by 3 ft. square monument was erected behind the United Church of Christ in Andover, Mass. It's inscription is:

George Abbot born in England was one
of the first settlers of Andover, AD 1643

He died Dec. 1681 age 66. She died June

John was a tanner, and from 27 Jan. 1661 (and several years thereafter), was a gravedigger in Roxbury.

He owned 10 acs. of land in Roxbury and his home was on this lot. He and Elizabeth sold this property 6 Dec. 1686 which coincides with their move to New Roxbury.

A deed dated 1 May 1686 names six men, including John, purchasing 15,100 acs. of land in the Wabbaquasset country. They purchased from Maj. Fitch and it was commonly called the Mashamoquet* purchase. The deed stipulated that the land was to be divided into 14 equal shares - 12 held by grantees and 2 shares by Maj. Fitch. Additional men from Roxbury were soon found to make the 12 required. The Indian Owaneco and Josiah, his eldest son, also signed this deed The deed can be seen at the Town Hall in Pomfret. A number of different proble delayed the division of land for eight years. When it was finally done, John was the 7th. in line to receive his share. The Indian upheavels then delayed the settlement. By then, most of the families had settled in Woodstock.

From 1686 until 1749, New Roxbury was governed by Mass. even though it wa situated in Conn. In 1749, the Conn. General Assembly deemed a 1713 decision void and they became a Conn. town.

John had lot #10 in the first division of land and lot #21 in 1698. He accumulated other property in New Roxbury and inherited 50 acs. of land from hi Mother in Roxbury, Mass.

New Roxbury's name was changed to Woodstock 18 Mar. 1690. The first town meeting was held 31 Mar. 1690 and John was chosen a selectman at the following Nov. meeting.

In Oct. 1691 the townsmen formed a committee to draw up plans for a meeting house. It was to be 30 ft. long, 26 ft. wide and 14 ft. stud. John was chosen to hire men and assign the work on this project.

* - pronounced Mashmugget

He was on the committee formed 12 Mar. 1688 to lay out the highways of Woodstock. He was also granted a piece of town land for 5 yrs. to experiment with tobacco growing.

Until 1696 most of the Woodstock families still belonged to the Roxbury Church. When Woodstock organized their own church that year, John was one of the first Deacon's chosen.

On the first of June§, John wrote his rather lengthy will. He provided Elizabeth, during her widowhood, his house to dwell in, 1 milk cow, a bed and furniture, neccessary utensils and 8 pnds. cash per year. If she required more it was to be paid by the children according to the proportion they received from his estate. If she remarried she would only recieve 12 pnds. total. His estate was appraised at 512 pnds. 6p. Among the items listed in the inventory were: books, arms and ammunition, 12 head of cattle, 1 old horse, 1 swine, a chest of drawers, 6 Turkey wrought chairs, a looking glass, a pair of money scales, pewter, brass and iron ware. There was also mustard seed and "barley in the barn".

He made stipulations for his children and grandchildren which will be mentioned later.

John is buried at Woodstock Hill Cem. and his stone is very readable. His son John and at least eight other family members are buried by him.

Elizabeth was the daughter of William Douglas b. about 1610 in Scotland and Anne Mattle, also born about 1610, the daughter of Thomas. William and Anne were in Ipswich, Mass. by 1641 and Boston by 1645. William was a cooper and was made freeman in 1646. In 1659 they moved to New London, Conn. where he received a land grant in 1663 from King Charles II. Douglas was considered the governor of the New Haven Colony.

Besides Elizabeth, the Douglas's had: Ann b. 1637 m. Nathaniel Geary; Robert b. 1639 m. Mary Hempstead; Sarah b. 8 Apr. 1643 m. John Keeny; William

Elizabeth was in New London when she died, perhaps visitng relatives, and she may be buried there.

It is rather exciting to go back to the town of an ancestor--240 years after his death--and have that ancestor remembered.

The town clerk referred to him as "The Land Grabber" and after a little more investigation, it became quite clear how he gained this nickname. He had immense land holdings and was involved in every aspect of community business.

If he wasn't a grantee or grantor, he was probably the Justice of the Peace who took the oath for the deed, the town clerk who recorded them or the surveyor who laid out the lines. For the 55 yrs. he lived in Woodstock, John was probably one of the best known men.

John was assigned his first lot in New Roxbury in 1688.

On 24 Feb. 1690/1 he was elected town clerk and served several terms. In 1694, he was granted 30 acs. of land for his work as town clerk. John was also the first representative sent to General Court from Woodstock in 1711.

The Minister's house was to be raised in early 1692. That building was to be 40 ft. long, 19 ft. wide and 14 ft. stud with a stack of 4 chimneys. Two gables were to be raised and covered also. The workmen were to bring the weekly accounts to John.

About 1690 he was selected to teach the town children to read, write and cipher. He taught for 8 yrs. By 1737 almost every man in New England could sign his name and reading was required to be taught in every Mass. town.*

In 1697 the war between England and France exposed the N.E. colonies to Indian barbarities. Bands of Mohawks ravaged the woods and committed shocking atrocities. Feelings of insecurity and alarm pervaded every Conn. resident. Isolated settlements like Woodstock were especially exposed. Watch houses were fortified. The General Assembly had ordered in Oct. 1696 that settlements like Woodstock were considered a frontier and by this act, it prevented inhabitants from leaving town without special permission or else suffer heavy penalties. John was appointed supervisor of the friendly Wabbaquaset and Mohegan Indians and directed them where to hunt and what sign to wear. The signs identified and thus protected them from English scouting parties.

Each town had it's own militia company. Each company elected it's own officers. This practice put a premium on popularity, so rank in the militia usually reflected a person's social station. The military spirit was strong in Woodstock and was greatly influenced by John and his sons. At various times he held the title of Col., Capt. and Maj. but the title of Col. stayed with him throughout life.

Militiamen provided their own weapons, usually a smoothbore musket, and ammunition, clothing and food for short expeditions. The local units held their own training programs. Expedition into Indian lands were usually by volunteer but a man could be drafted. The wealthy could buy a substitute and all service was of a short term.

In 1698 John took his family to New London, Conn. and was granted a license to keep a house of entertainment.

He returned to Woodstock in 1703, when his father died. His father left him a double portion of his aînd, the house and homestead. The east end of the house and the shop was already John's so this was not included. He was executor of his father' estate.

Quite soon after returning to Woodstock, John was appointed the town surveyor. In June 1714 he was commissioned to survey the line between Conn. and Mass. He became a Justice of the Peace in 1707.

He surveyed and laid out many towns in the northeastern section of Conn. and nearly every farm in them. The original 1719 survey map of Pomfret can still be seen at the town hall. He made purchases in Killingly, Pomfret, Ashford and Woodstock. He was considered the second greatest landowner in the area. Maj. Fitch was the largest landowner and John worked for him in surveying many of Fitch's land sales.

The New Scituate purchase in the town of Ashford was probably John's largest purchase. There were eight co-owners from Scituate in Plymouth Co. Mass. buying a 9,600 ac. tract from Maj. James Fitch. They held varying proportions, John's being 2/16ths. or 1,200 acs. He subsequently purchased other shares and resold them later. Samuel, Thomas, Joshua and John Chandler, jr. were among the purchasers from John.

There were so many deeds recorded on which John's name appeared, in Ashford, that it would have taken weeks to read through them all.

A deed of 19 Oct. 1722 by Thomas Fitch, Boston, gave power of attorney to his trusty friend Capt. John Chandler of Woodstock. It included a special commission to lay out, affix, settle and determine the boundry line between Fitch's tract of land situated in the town of Pomfret which adjoined the land of Mr. Samuel Warner. John was to settle with Warner once and for all, any disputes and differences concerning the boundries between their lands and if need be, John could pursue and prosecute within the law, to oblige and compel Warner to settle.

John became a member of The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Co. in 1725. This is the oldest military organization in the U.S. It was formed in Boston in 1637 and it's members were the leading citizens of Boston. The company took an active part in the Rev. War, but now it is mainly a social organization.

In 1731 Woodstock was included in the new county of Worcester. John was made Judge of Probate and Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas. The first session of court was held at Judge John's Woodstock home and much legal and public business was dealt with.

John stirred some heated controversy by not delivering the town books to his successor. He claimed that the propriotors records were written amongst the town records and he would not re-write either without some compensation. He wanted 20 pnds. for the service but the town refused to pay more than 10 pnds.

usually reflected a person's social station. The military spirit was strong in Woodstock and was greatly influenced by John and his sons. At various times he held the title of Col., Capt. and Maj. but the title of Col. stayed with him throughout life.

Militiamen provided their own weapons, usually a smoothbore musket, and ammunition, clothing and food for short expeditions. The local units held their own training programs. Expedition into Indian lands were usually by volunteer but a man could be drafted. The wealthy could buy a substitute and all service was of a short term.

In 1698 John took his family to New London, Conn. and was granted a license to keep a house of entertainment.

He returned to Woodstock in 1703, when his father died. His father left him a double portion of his land, the house and homestead. The east end of the house and the shop was already John's so this was not included. He was executor of his father' estate.

Quite soon after returning to Woodstock, John was appointed the town surveyor. In June 1724 he was commissioned to survey the line between Conn. and Mass. He became a Justice of the Peace in 1707.

He surveyed and laid out many towns in the northeastern section of Conn. and nearly every farm in them. The original 1719 survey map of Pomfret can still be seen at the town hall. He made purchases in Killingly, Pomfret, Ashford and Woodstock. He was considered the second greatest landowner in the area. Maj. Fitch was the largest landowner and John worked for him in surveying many of Fitch's land sales.

The New Scituate purchase in the town of Ashford was probably John's largest purchase. There were eight co-owners from Scituate in Plymouth Co. Mass. buying a 9,000 ac. tract from Maj. James Fitch. They held varying proportions. John's being 2/16ths, or 1,500 acs. He subsequently purchased other shares and resold them later. Samuel, Thomas, Joshua and John Chandler, Jr. were among the purchasers from John.

There were so many deeds recorded on which John's name appeared, in Ashford, that it would have taken weeks to read through them all.

A deed of 19 Oct. 1722 by Thomas Fitch, Boston, gave power of attorney to his trusty friend Capt. John Chandler of Woodstock. It included a special commission to lay out, affix, settle and determine the boundry line between Fitch's tract of land situated in the town of Pomfret which adjoined the land of Mr. Samuel Warner. John was to settle with Warner once and for all, any disputes and differences concerning the boundries between their lands and if need be, John could pursue and prosecute within the law, to oblige and compel Warner to settle.

John became a member of The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Co. in 1725. This is the oldest military organization in the U.S. It was formed in Boston in 1637 and it's members were the leading citizens of Boston. The company took an active part in the Rev. War, but now it is mainly a social organization.

In 1731 Woodstock was included in the new county of Worcester. John was made Judge of Probate and Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas. The first session of court was held at Judge John's Woodstock home and much legal and public business was dealt with.

John stirred some heated controversy by not delivering the town books to his successor. He claimed that the proprietors records were written amongst the town records and he would not re-write either without some compensation. He wanted 20 pnds. for the service but the town refused to pay more than 10 pnds.

Eventually John was paid 25 pnds. for his 26 yrs. town clerk service and the other demands were conceded.

The Boston Gazette carried this obituary: "Woodstock, Aug. 12, 1743. After nine days illness, the tenth instant, died Hon. John Chandler of this town, in the 79th. year of his age, and this day his remains were decently interred and accompanied to the grave by a vast concourse of people from this and neighboring towns. He was one of the first settlers, to whose wisdom and prudence the order and regularity of Woodstock was largely owing. He was in the Commission of Peace 40 yrs., one of the Council several years which office he serviced with much honor and acceptance".

Moses, sr. was a blacksmith and a member of The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Co. of Mass., being inducted in 1693.

Neither Hannah nor Moses lived to see their children grown. Moses's brother James became young Hannah's guardian 1 Aug. 1695. Joshua Gee, another uncle, was named Moses, jr.'s guardian. Gee was a Boston shipwright.

Moses, sr. died intestate and after his debts were settled, his estate was valued at 175 pnds. 13s 9p. One third went to his wife Mary. Moses, jr. received a double portion, or 78 pnds. 1s 8p and young Hannah received 39 pnds. 10p. The children's portion was to be held in trust by their guardians until they were of age.

Hannah also received 10 pnds. from her grandfather Chandler's estate.

Moses, jr.'s death left his estate of 127 pnd. to his sister Hannah and her husband. It included property in Woodstock which was sold to an Ebenezer Weld. The house, land and blacksmith shop in Roxbury originally belonging to Moses, sr., also came into their hands.

Joseph was just 20 yrs. old when his father died, but was willed a very good portion of land to support himself with.

He received 114 acs. in the Mashamoquet purchase called the "lot on the line". This land had good soil, which was easily cleared and smooth hills with few trees. The animals grazed through the winters on the course native grass and were in excellant shape in the spring.

The deeds show that Joseph sold 102 acs. which orginally was part of the 3rd. division belonging to Dea. Chandler, to Nathaniel Sessions in 1704. He sold another 100 ac. tract in 1706.

By the late 1690's the Indian hostilities had settled down and Mashamoquet was slowly settled. By 1713 there were about 45 families living in the area.

Joseph himself, did not settle on his Mashamaquet property until his marriage. The "Genealogies of Woodstock Families" has a picture of Joseph's home taken ca 1930. In 1983, the same home, in beautiful repair and landscaping, is still standing. A stone pillar at the roadside has a plaque with the inscription "Joseph Chandler - 1708".

Mashamoquet was recognized as a settlement in itself, the town incorporated in May 1713, and the name was changed to Pomfret.

Joseph was a selectman in 1716 with Dea. Philemon Chandler and Abel Paine. He was admitted to the Pomfret Church 20 Apr. 1719. He served as a tax collector in 1726.

His horse and cattle mark was a "swallow tail in ye near ear".

He was elected the Capt. of the Train Band 26 Sep. 1728, with Nathaniel Sessions as the Lt. and Noah Sabin the Ensign. The Train Band or "trained band" was later known as the militia.

The west part of Pomfret was generally occupied by sons of the original propriotors and settlers. David, the 3rd. child of Joseph, was among this group.

Susanna's will was entered into probate 30 Jan. 1755 and the estate valued at 1,335 pnds. 14s. Among the items in the inventory were: her wearing apparel - 146 pnds. 4s; a yearling colt - 37 pnds. 10s; notes owed her - 824 pnds.; bedding and furniture - 146 pnds.; a Bible and other books - 55 pnds.; glasses, earthenware, pewter and a case of bottles.

With the amount of property Joseph had, and was a seemingly wealthy person, it was quite surprising to find that he had no will or intestate proceedings.

John was one of the three men (including his father) who surveyed and laid out the line between Mass. and Conn. in 1714. As he engaged in surveying as did his father, and since their names are the same, it is difficult to prove who actually surveyed what.

John went to New London, married and his first 3 children were born while there. All their births are recorded in Woodstock, however.

When John was a Maj. of a company of scouts in 1724, he impressed 20 men for frontier service. They guarded the town of Worcester*. The presence of these soldiers may have saved Worcester from desolation and destruction.

He was appointed Coroner of Worcester Co. in 1728 while still living in Woodstock. About 1731 he was requested by the Worcester residents to move there and he found it would be advantageous to do so.

John became more involved in the town's affairs. When the courts were established in Worcester in 1731, he was appointed clerk of all the courts and remained so until 1754. He represented Worcester at the State Leg. 1732-35, 1737-40 and 1742-53. He was the town Treasurer 1741-52 and Registrar of Deeds until 1762.

His appointment to Judge came 19 Apr. 1754 and in May 1757 he became the Chief Justice.

He staunchly supported both government and church. His doors were always open to ministers of all faiths. He was also known to bring home and feed the widows and orphans who were brought before his court.

He loved to promote all good. A spirited conversation was a great delight to him. His talents were brilliant and showy and he was cheerful, full of jest and hilarity.

He was listed as an heir in Esther's¶ will and he gave his brother Samuel power of attorney to settle peacebly and fairly by legal means. The power of attorney document was dated 5 May 1756.

This man headed a family that was immensely respected and had substantial influence over the residents of Worcester until the Revolution.

In the settlement of their father's estate, 26 Mar. 1750, John of Worcester, William of Killingly, Samuel and Thomas of Woodstock and Thomas and Mehitable Buckminster of Brookfield, sold their shares of inherited land to Joshua. This tract was in the south east corner of Ashford¶ and contained 148½ acs. He paid 80 pnds. 6s 8p old tenor. Furthermore, he was to keep their kinsman Joseph Maccoy§ for 10 years, which part of the time had already expired.

Joseph Maccoy was retarded and it appears his grandfather had custory of him. Upon John's death, Joshua took temporary custody and then by agreement with his brothers and sister, continued to care for him. Joseph was the son of Joshua's sister Mary and it is not known what happened to her or her husband.

Joshua had the interesting distinction of owning the first clock in Woodstock.

He was a yeoman and a highway surveyor in 1731.

He was the first to take up land in his father's "out division" which eventually became West Woodstock.

Many people in this line are buried in Bungay Hill Cemetery.

302. WINTHROP b. 6 Apr. 1747 m. Mary Gleason

303. Lathrop He was not named in his father's will, so he must have d. before

William built his home in 1743 on Chandler Hill. It was in the district of Killingly, the area later called Thompson.

He remained active in Woodstock affairs and owned property there. This creates some confusion on finding the vital records of this family as they can be in several different towns.

He was listed as a Capt. on his marriage record and it is known he was in charge of a frontier guard at Worcester for many months.

He was a farmer and surveyor.

Jemima inherited land from her father, which was from his grandfather, Capt. Thomas Bradbury. This land was located in Salisbury, Mass. and Jemima and William sold it in 1726.

Jemima was a bright, kind, intelligent and religious person. An exemplary person in every way.

The Pomfret town record of 4 Apr. 1757 shows that William's original will and records were burned. The clerk, Penuel Bowens, testified that the now recorded copy is a true copy to the best of his rememberance. The will on record is dated 1 May 1753.

William gave his son Thomas Bradbury "my negro man Robert after his Mother's decease, but if Robert chose not to move so far from his friends and would rather live with another son, then Thomas shall have the value of Robert in cash". "The liberal college education and other expenses since leaving college shall be Thomas's full share and portion and I (William) hope he is satisfied with it".

Among the items William willed to Jemima was his chaise and furniture and one-half of his personal estate. She was also granted the use and improvement of the house and homestead while bringing up the youngest children to age. Should Jemima remain his widow after the youngest child is of age, she still would have the use and improvements of half the homestead all her natural life.

William's daughters Jemima, Mary and Mehitable were to receive the other half of his moveable and personal estate. They were also to receive all other lands in Woodstock and Killingly not already disposed of and whatever was still coming from William's father's estate--all to be equally divided. William, Henry and Winthrop were also to provide money and goods to them. The girls later received 510 pnds. 10s from their grandfather's estate to be divided between them.

Henry was to receive the rest of the homestead, sharing it with Winthrop, after their Mother's decease. They were to pay their sister's 200 pnds. old tenor within 2 yrs. of coming into full possession. Henry did not live long enough to come into his inheritance.

Among the items listed in the inventory of William's estate were: wearing apparel - 10 pnd. 16s 3p; table linen - 2 pnd. 16s 3-; pewter, tin, brass and copper; two iron pots, one kettle and a frying pan - 15s; ironing box and heaters - 6s; two pairs of andirons, cranes, shovels, tongs and tramel - 1 pnd.; 17s; teapot and spoons - 15s 8p; case of draws; one dozen of cain back chairs - 1 pnd. 9s; 2 locking glasses - 18s; one case of knives and forks - 9s; books and shoemakers tools; woolen wheel; joiners tools; farming tools; cooper's jointer and wooden vise; tools for cutting great screws; "winder frames sashes sash stuff and casements" - 8s; one horse, one cow; bellows and blacksmith tools; one swine, two cattle. Total value of this estate was 352 pnds. 1s 1-. The inventory was taken 9 Apr. 1756.

It would seem that William had a very self-sufficient farm with all the varied tradesman tools he owned.

James was living in S. Brimfield, Mass. when he married. He was a cooper.

He then moved to Woodstock and lived on land owned by his father-in-law, but later they returned to S. Brimfield.

Elizabeth inherited 31-3/4 acs., with buildings, in Woodstock; 10-3/4 acs. at Harth Stones; 200 acs. in Ashford and a tract in Thompson. Her father bought these lots in 1729, sold them to John and Mehitable Coit in 1734, but they were later returned to John's estate.

James's name appears on a quit claim deed 7 May 1750 signing off to Samuel Chandler. On 14 Mar. 1757 James sold several small tracts to John Chandler of Worcester. These had been purchased from his father-in-law, Uncle Samuel Chandler and a 1/7 share from William Chandler.

One 1 Sep. 1765 James took a letter of transfer from the church at Woodstock to the church in Brimfield*, Mass.

No in depth research was done, but the deaths of James and Elizabeth did not appear in the vital records of S. Brimfield.

Samuel inherited his father's homestead. John gave it to him "in consideration of Samuel's great prudence, industry and dutiful behavior and application in my business ever since he was 21".

Samuel was a Justice of the Peace for Worcester Co. and had power of attorney for his brother John in the settlement of their step-mother's estate.

He was in charge of hiring news carriers between Fairfield and Woodstock.

He was a Deacon of the church.

Samuel was also a member of the Woodstock militia and probably gained his rank of Capt. through that service.

Thomas was known to be very involved in the public affairs of Woodstock. He was the first representative elected to the Conn. Assembly in 1749 when Woodstock broke from Mass. government.

This is probably the Thomas who was selectman of Woodstock 3 Apr. 1750. And if he was the same Thomas who was Recorder of deeds in that time period, he had clear neat handwriting.

He served with distinction in several early military campaigns and was entrusted with many important commissions in Mass. and Conn. He served as Lt. Col. at Cape Breton in 1745.

The French were in possession of Cape Breton and by the English re-capturing it, communication between France and Quebec was shut off. In British hands, our coasts were secure and movement by the French in the St. Lawrence was obstructed.

Thomas purchased 65 acs. for 1,100 pnds. from Joshua Chandler in 1753. He sold 45 acs. of this tract to Moses Chandler* in May 1754 for 765 pnds. in bills of credit. Then on 25 Apr. 1754 Thomas sold 46 acs. 108 rods of land to Joshua for 600 pnds. in bills of public credit. Thomas reserved the right to cart or sled wood from his land north of the sold lot, through the said lot, by the most convenient place.

On 7 May 1756 he sold his remaining rights to his father's property estate (not already disposed of) to Samuel Chandler for 112 pnds., bills of credit.

A bill of credit would be similar to an I.O.U. It could specify a certain amount of hours work or goods to the value of the stated sum instead of an actual cash value. These bills of credit could be passed from one person to another, the same as cash, if both parties were agreeable to such an exchange. The person holding the bill, could call in the service, with a respectable lengths notice, at any time he wished.

Neighbor Abel Stiles and Thomas entered an agreement upon the town books 5 Apr. 1760 on tending a fence that ran between their houses. Chandler was to enjoy, repair and mend the western half and Stiles was to do the same for the eastern half. They set a penalty of 100 pnds or to pay all damages caused by neglect.

Thomas was named executor of Esther's¶ estate. Samuel, John of Worcester, Joshua, Elizabeth, Lemuel, Jemima, jr.,James and Elizabeth Frizzel and Thomas and Mehitable Buckminster quit claimed their rights to the estate. They also acknowledged they received from Thomas what was willed to them and that he is to pay any further debts against Esther's estate out of his shares. One share of her estate was valued at 510 pnds. 10s.

About 1761, Thomas went to Walpole, N.H. intending to settle there. But in 1764 he moved to Cumberland Co. N.H. and helped form the township of Chester. In 1766 he obtained a land patent for the town of Chester, VT. He received the patent from the Governor of N.Y. and by that event, Thomas was held to be a Tory. He and sons John and Thomas were allowed their choice of 500 acs. each as the first three settlers.

Thomas was the Chief Justice in 1775 and he was induced to favor the Tory side of the Whig and Loyalist difficulty. The Whigs put him in jail at Westminster, VT. for the duration of the war.

Later in life he lost his money and was imprisioned for debts, again at Westminster. He died while there. One account states he is buried within the limits of the jail, but others say his reamins were disposed of without ceremony.

Williams bought a house, store and farm on Woodstock Hill in 1784. Abigail inherited 1/3 of her parents indoor moveables and 13 pnds. in silver.

The first public record of Joseph, jr. seems to be the deed stating: "I Joseph Chandler of Pomfret in ye county of Windham and gentleman for and in consideration of ye parental love and affection which I have unto my son Joseph Chandler, jr. of Pomfret aforesaid, ye saddler and for his settlement and advancement in ye world..." dated 15 June 1732. The tract deeded at this time was situated on the southwest corner of Joseph, srs. homestead and was 20 acs. 2 "rood" and 28 perch in size.

The early deeds most often specified the trade or occupation of the grantees and grantors which is extremely helpful in following the life of that person.

On 6 Mar. 1733 Joseph, jr. purchased 11½ acs. more land in Pomfret for 80 pnds.

Sometimes a very odd size or shaped parcel of land was purchased or sold and perhaps it was to make a more regular shaped boundry. One such tract was 12 rods in size, that Joseph purchased from Josiah Sabin. It abutted Joseph's previously owned land. Joseph paid 20s in bills of credit 6 May 1743 for it.

He purchased two tracts from his father on 27 Nov. 1749. He paid 100 pnds. for a 5½ ac. lot which was part of the homestead and another 3 acs. that was adjacent. Joseph, sr. reserved the right to pass through either tract to get to other lands he still owned.

There were numerous other land transactions credited to Joseph, the saddler, through the 1750's.

Joseph paid 320 pnds. to his brothers and sisters for the rights to 20 acs. of their brother Stephen's estate in 1752.

His will was written 9 May 1780. He provided very generously for his wife. These provisions included: use and improvement of the west room in his dwelling house, privileges in the kitchen and half the garden, necessary yard room, cellar room, use of the well and use of half of all his indoor moveables, all during her natural life. She was to have sufficient wood cut by son Joseph, use of the horse and chaise as much as she needed them, his clock and two cows. Their son Joseph was also to provide her with 16 bu. Indian corn annually, 5 bu rye, 4 bu wheat, 3 barrel of cider, 1½ bu. malt, a sufficient amount of good beef, 12 pnds. of good flax and 10 pnds of good wool, all to be delivered in their proper season. She was also to receive 20 spanish milled dollars or their equivilant in silver at a rate of 6s 8p a year.

Daniel's parental settlement "for love and affection which I have and to have toward my well beloved son Daniel" was a 58 ac. tract in Pomfret valued at 400 pnd. old tenor. The deed was written 10 Nov. 1749 and the tract bordered on his brother's David and Stephen's land and his father's land.

By 9 July 1754 Daniel had moved to a farm in Ashford. On that date he sold 4-3/4 acs., inherited from his brother Stephen's estate, to Peter Chandler for 161 pnds. 10s 9p.

On 27 Sep. 1754, Elizabeth Clark, of Ashford, sold to Daniel of Ashford, her rights to property previously purchased from William Chandler of Thompson and Samuel Chandler of Woodstock.

Daniel sold a 10 ac. lot to his brother-in-law John Mason, which adjoined property Mason already owned. This was recorded in Ashford 19 July 1755.

There were several land transactions in 1757 involving Daniel. On 9 Sep. he sold 54 acs. 27 rods of land in Pomfret to Caleb Grosvenor. This lot abutted other land owned by Daniel and his brother's. On 20 Oct. he sold 10 acs. which was an 1/8th. part of Stephen's farm. Nathan Frink had been renting this farm and on 17 Apr. 1758, William and Susanna Sabin sold their 2/8th.'s share to Frink.

On 8 Sep. 1758 Daniel sold 90 acs. in Ashford for 290 pnds. to Jonathan Burnham, his father-in-law. The land abutted John Mason, dec. and was near the Ashford meeting house. About three weeks later a deed was recorded in Hartford,

* - Mary O. Read's notes stated he had a first wife, Freelove Burnham, but no verification could be found

Conn. whereby Daniel purchased 90 acs. for 300 pnds. from Jonathan Burnham. This was probably land that Jonathan had inherited through his grandfather Thomas Burnham. This area incorporated in 1783 as East Hartford.

The exact reason for this land exchange is not clear, but perhaps Daniel was just ready to move on to other things. He did continue farming after moving to East Hartford, but he also had a stone quarry and was a merchant. There was said to be copper mines in this area also. The homestead was about 6 mis. east of the Connecticut River and a ½ mi. north of Buckland Corners.

Daniel purchased other property in E. Hartford including 32 acs. on 26 Nov. 1783. On 13 July 1784 he purchased 1½ acs. of a nine acre lot which was Samuel Bidwell's share, for 40s. One 15 Jan. 1789 he was one of 29 purchasers of a 19½ ac. lot, his cost being 25 pnds.

Daniel served in the 1st. Co., 11th. Conn. Reg. during the Rev. He did not live long enough to apply for a pension so the details of his service are not known. Some records say he was a Pvt. and others say he gained the rank of Capt. A printed account of James Bellows (382) calls him Capt.

Daniel died intestate. Daniel, jr. and Violet were named the administrators of his estate.

Violet signed a quit claim deed to all her rights and interest in the estate 25 Feb. 1792 to her son Daniel for 50 pnds. Daniel, jr's. brother and sister's sold their estate rights to him about the same time.

Later that same year (12 Nov.) Daniel, jr. leased out half of the old house and a half lot (15 acs.) to Violet for the rest of her natural life.¶

On 1 Mar. 1794, Daniel, jr. and Violet leased to Libbeus Andrews (388) the whole quarry, shops and house lot for a term of three years.¶

A deed of 11 Oct. 1798 shows Violet selling a 14 ac. lot with a mansion house to Aaron Buckland for $128. She states this is the whole of her right in the estate of Daniel, sr. Abijah was a witness to this deed.¶

Violet sold the 32 ac. lot in East Hartford for $32 on 5 Apr. 1803. Sabra Chandler witnessed this deed.¶

Violet lived with her daughter Hannah in Williston, VT. for awhile and also was in Lebanon, N.H. a short while.

When she returned to E. Hartford she tried to reclaim her property but was denied it by the courts and lived her later years at the mercy of the town.

Violet's parents lived with her and Daniel, sr. in their later years. Violet's father, Jonathan Burnham, is buried with her and Daniel at Buckland Cem. but no record of her Mother has been found yet.

Daniel, sr.'s obituary appeared in the 14 Jan. 1790 issue of the Hartford Courant but it merely stated the place and date of death.

This is the document authored by his Uncle James Putnam (287). One fourth of the 200 registered voters signed it, but it was not done within the rules of a town meeting. It greatly angered the Whigs and they voted and ordered him to obliterate, erase or otherwise deface the said recorded protest and the names thereunto subscribed. He was to make them illegible and unintelligible. At an open town meeting Clark did as required. His fingers were then dipped into the ink and drawn across the page. He left home in June of 1775 and went to Halifax, N.S. and then to Can. He returned that Sep. and surrendered himself a prisoner to the common jail. The confinement impaired his health and he was sent to his Mother's house. Finally, after giving security or bond, he was allowed to go to Lancaster to rest. He later returned to Worcester and engaged in trade. He was a small statured person and dressed oddly, often wearing red small clothes. He was the subject of many jeers and taunts, but he always had a snappy retort.

He set up his law practice in Petersham, Mass. where his family owned considerable property. He fled to Halifax, N.S. in 1776 to join other Loyalists. He was proscribed and banished in 1778. Knowing he was proscribed in Mass., he joined a group to get a land grant in Nova Scotia and each member was to receive 5,000 acs., but this project was squelched. He was in a corp of volunteer Loyalists in N.Y. which saw much active service. He was allowed to return to Mass. under a license on 2 Nov. 1784. He went back to Petersham and engaged in trade, but gave it because of ill health and returned to Worcester. His citizenship was restored on 14 Feb. 1789. He never had the energy to resume his law profession and lived his last years with his sister Mary Seaver. He was known as a pleasant person, was a good singer and was called upon at many social parties. He had a good mind, a lively imagination and a cheerful disposition. Had his course of life drawn him differently, he probably would have been a distinguished character.

set up stores. They had outlets in Boston, Mass., Chester, Putney, Woodstock and Royalton, VT. Benjamin Swan was a partner in the Woodstock, VT. store known as Swan and Chandler. Among their goods for sale were: rum, brandy, anniseed, loaf sugar, Bohea tea, preff'd tobacco, 10 penny nails and India cottons in different widths and prices. Samuel also owned 18 or 20 asheries. His business connections were immense for the times, throughout the state and into Can. Samuel was offered $100,000 for the asheries in 1812, but he preferred shipping the ashes to England as planned. The ships were delayed by ice and other problems, and when finally arriving, the value had gone down and the Chandler business along with it. The ashes were important to Eng. in the manufacture of glass and soft soap. At his death, all of his businesses were closed and his estate was valued at $66,000, but there were many claims against it. He always welcomed his friends with a social drink and the best of havanas but succumbed to no excesses.

John was the third in line of this family to become Judge in Worcester Co. serving 1762 to 1774. Prior to that he served the town as treasurer 1753-60; Sheriff 1751-62 and town clerk 1764-68.

He was a Col. in the militia and served in the French Wars. He was in the company sent to the relief of Fort William Henry, near Lake George, N.Y., in 1757.

Possibly one third of the population of America, at the time of the Rev. was loyal to the King of England and chose to suffer the hardships and privations of defeat rather than renounce their former allegiance.

The political party of the Loyalists was called the Tory party and it's adherents were called Tories.

The pre-Rev. conflict was violent in Worcester. John's family was embroiled in it. For protection, John fled to Boston in 1774. His family sent him silver plate while there, to sell, to support himself.

When he left home he had no intention of leaving the country, but as the war intensified, he again fled. This time he went to Halifax along with British troops. He was shipwrecked on the way and narrowly escaped with his life.

A Philadelphia newspaper published the following by an anonymous writer: "Awake, Americans, to sense your danger. No time to be lost. Instantly banish every Tory from among you....Banishment, perpetual banishment, should be their lot."

John was proscribed and banished along with his sons Rufus and William, brother-in-law James Putnam and his wife's nephews Samuel and Dr. William Paine. If they returned to this country and were caught, they faced a death penalty.

If Mary wished to retain her dower rights, she had to remain in Worcester, which she did. Since six of their children were still minors it was prudent to do so.

The Whig Commissioners took an inventory of John's household. The large household had four servants including one black maid. Some household goods and the house were left for Mary, but the rest was auctioned off. It is said the very chair she was sitting on was auctioned, but she bore it well and never lost her dignity.

The property confiscated is now a part of the most valuable land in Worcester, Mass.

John was treated harshly for his opinions and loyalties, just as though he had borne arms in the field.

By July of 1776 John was in England, never to return to his Worcester home.

The sacrifice of property and possessions was large. He gave the amount of loss as 11,067 pnds. sterling and another 6,000 pnds. for loss of business and office. The Commissioners of Loyalist Claims considered this such a modest claim that he was allowed the full amount and there upon gained the nickname of "The Honest Refugee".

In England he was spoken of as being cheerful, friendly, kind and engaging in manner as well as hospitable. He was an enterprising merchant and successful businessman.

He is buried at Islington, an iron fence and slab mark the spot. The tombstone is inscribed: "Here lies the body of John Chandler, esq. formerly of Worcester, Mass. Bay, North America, who died 26 Sept. A.D. 1800 in the 80th. year of his age." It is amusing to note that our country was still not refered to as the United States.

His oil portrait, believed to have been painted about 1784, was preserved at the American Antiquarian Society in Worcester. It may still exist there.

Mary's obituary reflects upon her as an excellant woman.

Chandler Bullock* wrote: "For his opinions he gave up forever his native land, his family life, his official prominence, the use of his fortune, his tranquility in his old age. Right or wrong, there was a fibre in such a man that is absent in most."

Gardiner served as a Maj. and Lt. Col. in the French Wars. He was at the surrender of Fort William Henry in 1757.

As with many other's of his family, he was very active in his community's affairs. He was the Worcester Co. treasurer eight years; county sheriff, suceeding his brother John in 1762, and a selectman.

His home was suppose to be very grand.

He was a Loyalist. Because of an address in behalf of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas in 1774, he was compelled to sign a recantation. In time he regained the confidence of the community and was able to live undisturbed.

The yet to be President, John Adams, was a close friend of this branch of the family. He wrote in a diary: "the Chandler's had great influence in the county until they took the British side and lost position".

William's grandfather Chandler left him 66 pnds. 3s toward a college education "if he lives and will learn". He studied medicine and surgery with Dr.'s Edward A. Holyoke and Joseph Orne. He and two partners opened the first apothecary shop in Worcester. He learned the art of innoculation in 1773, but the town would not allow him to practice it. He was suppose to have helped James Putnam (287) pen the Worcester Protest directed against the dumping of tea in Boston. He was on the town list of "obdurate Tories". He fled Salem in Sep. 1774 after his father was mobbed, and sailed to London with Rufus Chandler (405). He returned in May to find he was in danger of hanging, so he returned to London. While there he obtained his M.D. He was appointed apothecary to the "Detrached Hosptial, North America". His wife and daughter joined him and they went to Newport, R.I. and then to N.Y. He was in Halifax, N.S. in 1783 and received a 5,000 ac. grant in N.B. He was active in the affairs of St. John, N.B. but he couldn't earn enough money, so he returned to Salem in Oct. 1787. He was also involved in marine insurance, manufacture of sugar and banking. He was frugal and temperate, a careful dresser. He bought out his brother's and sister's shares of his father's new farm "The Oaks" in Worcester and spent his later years more in farming than with medicine. He was the Clerk of courts for Worcester Co. 1751 to 1774. He also served as the Registrar of Probate and Deeds.

Timothy was one of the founders of the First Unitarian Church under the pastorate of Rev. Aaron Bancroft. (415)

Just before the Rev. War, he started building "The Oaks". Because of his Loyalist leanings, he left Worcester during the war. He returned soon after the close of the war, but died before he saw the finish of his elegegant new home.

James was rebellious and unruly while attending Harvard. During his freshman year he was remonstrated publicly for wearing his hat inside and scuffling with a senior over the matter. In his sophomore year, he was fined for drinking prohibited liquers.

He finally settled down and graduated in 1746. He read law with Edmund Trowbridge, opening his own office in Worcester in 1749. For 20 yrs. he was the only trained lawyer in Worcester. He in turn had a law student, who gained national fame--John Adams.

James was appointed Lt. Col. of the militia 24 Sep. 1756 and became a Maj. a year later. He commanded 300 men from Col. Chandler's regiment on a march to Westfield.

He had become a J.P. 11 Jan. 1758. He served a term as selectman and one as an assessor. He served these offices as a matter of proper duty, not with enthusiasm.

He became very distinguished in his profession and was recommended as a very proper person for any vacant Crown appointment in the Colonies. He was offered the office of Attorney General in 1768 but declined it. He accepted the office in 1774, but the war created other problems for him and the post did him little good.

He wrote the "Worcester Protest" in 1774 which was printed in newspapers and recorded in the town records*. It protested against "the riotous and seditious actions of the evil minded and ill disposed person who, under the disguise of patriotism, falsely declare themselves the friends of liberty and intend to reduce all things to a state of tumult, disorder and confusion". This was all in reaction to the dumping of the tea in Boston Harbor.

The madness and violence in Worcester became so bad by Aug. of 1774 that James found staying there would be unsafe, so he left for Boston. He had said "one year ago the taking up and hanging 20, perhaps 10, or 5 of the leaders of this rebellion would have stopped the whole mischief".

On 5 July 1775, James was commissioned to command a company of Loyal Associates in Boston. He continued this duty in N.Y. from Oct. 1776 until he left fo Eng. in Dec. 1779.

He also was obliged to sell his silver plate in N.Y. to support his family.

When his property was confiscated, the inventory showed it was considerable. He made a claim to the Loyalist Commission for 18,256 pnds. 12s and was allowed 4,725 pnd. for it.

James' campaigned for the appointment as Chief Justice of Nova Scotia or New Brunswick. He did not gain this, but was appointed Senior Judge and member of the Council of N.B. at a salary of 300 pnds. a year.

He left his family in Eng. and sailed for N.B. He wrote that the country appeared very good and would make a flourishing province.

In a letter to a brother in Mass. he said he was hoping to be settled in N.B. for the rest of his life. He would like to see his brother and friends, but would not wish to live in the States again.

When James's family joined him in Apr. 1785, they found him happy and performing his duties of council. He was fully convinced he had shown good judgement in his actions when the disorders broke out in Mass.

He wrote friends in Mass. with a sarcastic tone saying he felt he was much better off than they were and their Revolution gained them nothing good. But he did wish they¶ would pay what they justly owed him.

He gave a forceable argument and had excellant judgement. His wit and humor was irresistable, but when need be, he had a stern and austere personality. He judged with as much fairness and justness in N.B. as he had in Mass.

Although he seemed happy enough with his new life we find this written of him: "Strange events that led to one of the giants of the American Bar to become an outlaw and exile, broken in fortune and spirit whilce his struggling pupil--elevated step-by-step the same course of events--became President of the Nation".§

Joshua graduated from Yale in 1747 and then studied law.

He was a leader in the civil affairs of New Haven. He served as a selectman for several terms by 1774. He was elected to the General Assembly in May 1768 and served until 1772. He again served in 1774-75. He also became a J.P. in 1769.

Joshua was one of the first on New Haven's Committee of Correspondance of 1774 but when the war actually started, he chose to side with England.

Joshua, with son-in-law Amos Botsford, owned a whole block of good property in New Haven. He also owned an estate and salt marsh a few miles out of town.

We have seen several examples so far, of cousins being at opposite views on the independance of this nation. But this is the first example of one family's brothers and father and son, torn apart by their beliefs.

The British troops only stayed in New Haven a short time after William and Thomas guided them in. When they left, all the Chandler's, except John, went along.

Joshua valued his confiscated property at 30,000 pnds. but the Whigs inventoried it at 3,755 pnds. and auctioned it for 3,050 pnds.

Joshua and several of his family were in a boat going to St. John, N.B. to receive their settlements on their Loyalist Claims. While in the Bay of Fundy, approaching the harbor, a violent snowstorm hit. The boat capsized. Joshua made it to shore but fell from a precipice during the excitement. His daughter Elizabeth died shortly afterwards from the effects of exposure, cold and exhaustion.

Joshua wrote a letter in 1784 from London, that he still had strong affection for this country.

Thomas graduated from Yale in 1745, received his M.A. in 1753 and then earned his Dr. of Divinity from Oxford in 1766.

He taught school in Woodstock while studying theology with Dr. Samuel Johnson.

When he was first called to serve a church, he was still too young to be ordained.

St. John's Church in Elizabeth,* N.J. installed him as their catechist in Oct. 1747, as their rector had recently died. Thomas received 10 pnd. a year for this. He also did mission work in the outlying areas. For the year 1752 he estimated he had traveled more than 3,000 mis. and preached 200 sermons filling this duty.

In June of 1751 he went to England and was ordained there. Upon returning to Elizabeth be became rector of St. John's. He then received 30 pnds. sterling from the Society and another 60 pnd.° N.J. currency from the people.

Thomas contracted smallpox in 1757 during an epidemic. He suffered ill effects for nearly 3 yrs. and carried many scars on his face the rest of his life. Otherwise, he was a large, portly, fine looking person with blue eyes and a strong commanding voice.

His Loyalist battle had a slightly different slant than his cousin's.

The controversy between the advocates of the Church of England and those who wished to break away heightened. This developed a "pamphlet controversy" between Dr. Thomas and a Dr. Chauncy. Thomas felt Chauncy missrepresented the cause and they spent three years writing long titled pamphlets to refudiate each other. The dissenters wanted to establish and American Episcopate, of course.

Many of Dr. Thomas's church members were dissenters which made matters most difficult. He felt it his duty to take an active part in defending the Church and Crown, but could not tolerate the violent feelings against them.

By May 1775 he found it wise to take refuge on a British man-of-war that was in the N.Y. harbor. He left his family at the rectory in Elizabeth and spent the next ten years in England alone.

He received 200 pnds. annual allowance from the British Government for his "merit and services".

As the war was closing, Dr. Thomas was recommended for the position as head of an episcopate in Nova Scotia. There were nearly 30,000 refugees there, so England was rather anxious to settle a church there.

Thomas became ill with a cancer on the face and could no longer wait to see if the episcopate would be his. He returned to Elizabeth and his family. Finally in 1786 things were settled and the position offered to him, but he was no longer well enough to accept.

Much damage was done to the church during the war, but it was repaired and being used when Dr. Thomas returned to Elizabeth.

He remained the rector and nominal head of his church in Elizabeth but rarely performed any duties. He resided at the rectory until his death.

He had held hopes nearly to the end of the war that the Royal authority would again rule America.

Jane received an annual pension from the British government after the death of Thomas.

At age 21 Theophilus's father gave him 180 acs. in Woodstock. He cleared that and farmed it. In 1759 he bought his brother William's house and moved into it.

On 19 June 1758 he quit claimed to Hon. Uncle Samuel Chandler, 5 tracts of land for 5 pnds.

By 1761 he had moved to Petersham, Mass. While there he was the representative to the Legislature, 1769, and surveyed several VT. towns

Theophilus "the surveyor" purchased the 7 ac 5 rod, with dwelling and barn, dower right of Mary Hodge Chandler (271). This property was adjacent to his own.

He returned to Woodstock about 1776.

His father willed him part of the farm in Killingly--about 200 acs. He also received the surveying instruments and a "book out of which surveying is taught".

Theophilus also built a fine home on Chandler Hill in Thompson.

Winthrop studied portrait painting in Boston. As with many artists, he was not particularly encouraged to continue with the portraits. He did manage to paint many of the family and there were many preserved. Copies were reproduced in the "Genealogies of the Woodstock Families". He was also a housepainter and that is most likely how he supported his family.

As his inheritance from his father, he received the rest of the homestead not given to his brother Samuel. But he was to share his portion with his brother Henry after their Mother was done with it. They were both to pay their sisters 200 pnds. within two years of coming into the possession of their portion.

He lived for some years in Worcester, Mass. but spent his last years with his brother Theophilus in the house on Chandler Hill.

His obituary in the Boston Chronicle ungraciously called him a housepainter, never mentioning the many portraits.

After his death, a manuscript he had written on botany was discovered. He described and drew much of the plant life and growth of the area. It was in great detail and very well done.

Charles was an excellant student and zealous in his pursuit of knowledge. He was also known for being punctual, eloquent, warm and sincere. He was a philanthropist and much respected. He graduated from Harvard in 1763, read law and opened his office at his ancestral homestead in S. Woodstock.

He also was involved in the town affairs. He was appointed in 1775 by the General Assembly, to employ two news carriers to go from Fairfield to Woodstock, "so as to arrive in Hartford every Sat. and forward all intelligence through the country with all convenient speed".

He was a member of the Legislature in 1779, 80, 83 and 84. In 1780 he was appointed the Judge of Probate for the Pomfret district. He was a member of the committee that discussed the boundry between R.I. and Conn.

During the Revolution Charles was on the Committee of Correspondance and the Committee of Inspection in Woodstock.

He kept his home in Pomfret and was building a new house with the aid of a Negro who he had cleared of a murder charge. The Negro was working out his fee. Charles suddenly collapsed and died and never saw the finish of his home.

Joseph was a Lt. and 1st. Sgt. in the 1st. Co. 11 Conn. REg. of Militia under Capt. Caleb Clark.

He lived on the family homestead. As each of his children left home, he gave the sons $1,000 and the daughters each $500.

Joseph inherited his father's desk, half the milk vessels, 1/3 his father's wearing apparel and his father's "poorest" bed and bedding and the rest of the estate that was not already divided.

Olive wrote her will 25 Aug. 1832. She gave her daughters Mary Hodge and Elizabeth Stearns, $110 and all her wearing apparel to be divided between them. Abigail's three children received $110 each. Rufus was to get $30. William received the chaise, harness and any debts he owed to his Mother were to be canceled. William also received the household furniture. Hannah*, Stephen, John B. and William were to receive the rest and residue of the estate to divide equally amongst themselves. Randolph was named executor.

During the Rev. he was in Capt. Caleb Clarks Co. (11th. Conn. Reg.) and was on the march to West Chester, N.Y.

He was made a Deacon in 1795.

On 10 Nov. 1749 William purchased 10 acs. of land for 100 pnds. from Joseph, sr. and Susanna Chandler. The land was bounded by Stephen and Daniel Chandler's land and his own land. On 28 Nov. the same year, he purchased another 5½ acs. from Joseph for 200 pnds. That tract was bounded by land he sold to Joseph, jr. that same day. Joseph, sr. reserved the right to pass through William's newly acquired land to get to his own wood lot.

Sabra gave a written testimony for Daniel, jr.'s Rev. pension application. She stated that her family had lived 3 mis. from the Chandler's and she had known them most of her life. She also stated that Abijah became ill and returned home from his military duty and his brother Daniel replaced him. She said Daniel was then hired by Benjamin Mann, her brother, and served 3 mos. for him. Sabra read Hannah Kimball's (387) statement and agreed with the facts in it.

Abijah was still in E. Hartford 16 Nov. 1787 as he purchased 2 parcels of land, totaling 15 acs. on that date.

A 16 Feb. 1792 deed shows Abijah's residence as Lebanon, Grafton Co. N.H. He then quit claimed all his rights to the estate of his father to his brother Daniel, for 50 pnds. Again on 8 Aug. of that year he quit claimed to Daniel all rights to two small parcels in E. Hartford which he had purchased earlier with Luther Gilman.

Abijah was in business with Daniel taking goods to Lebanon and trading them at the outlet of Enfield Pond. This was an unsuccessful business.*

Abijah was the host for a meeting Oct. 1803 of the townsmen of Lebanon. They discussed and voted on building roads and bridges in town.

In the fall of 1806, Abijah and others from Lebanon went to Lawrence Co. N.Y. he took up a farm near Nicholville and his family joined him the following spring. Sabra was the first white woman in that town.

Abijah kept a tavern two miles east of Nicholville on Malone Rd. He also worked as a stone mason and built the gristmill in Nicholville, on the east branch of the St. Regis River.

He became a J.P. and was an original member of the Baptist Society which formed in 1818.

Daniel was only 15 yrs. old when he first entered the military service. His older brother, Abijah, was drafted to serve 3 mos. at Fort Trumbull near New London, Conn. Abijah became ill and called on Daniel to substitute for his time. Daniel entered service about 15 July 1779 and served garrison duty for 2 mos. and 24 or 25 days.

A year later, Benjamin Mann, a neighbor of the Chandler's was drafted to serve 3 mos. Mann called on Daniel to serve as his substitute.

In July or Aug. of 1781 another draft was held at E. Hartford and Daniel was drafted for himself. They marched from Hartford to Fort Trumbull and were stationed there under Capt. Loomis. Fort Trumbull fell to the British and the troops retreated to Fort Griswold. There under the leadership of Gen. Benedict Arnold, many of the troops were indiscriminately bayoneted and killed. Fate was with Daniel as he was on a boat upriver. He was with a command going for wood and fascines* for the Fort. He thus escaped becoming a prisoner of war or sharing the fate of death.

Daniel was residing in St. Armand, Can. when he applied for a pension 29 May 1833. He made application in VT. and Pennel Leavens and Jasper Chaffee of Berkshire attested they knew Daniel to be of good character.

His sister Hannah who was living in St. Lawrence Co. N.Y., gave written testimony recollecting the times and places of Daniel's service. Sabra Chandler, the wife of Abijah and sister of Benjamin Mann, gave her written testimony which concurred with what Hannah had given.

Daniel most likely grew up on his father's farm and assisted in the stone quarry.

Daniel, sr. left no will, but Daniel, jr. along with his mother Violet, were made executors of the estate 12 Jan. 1792.

Daniel bought out the other heirs of the estate in E. Hartford, including his Mother's dower right. On 11 June 1792 Daniel, jr. sold two parcels in E. Hartford. The first contained 120 acs. with two dwelling houses, a barn and other buildings and was near the Windsor town line. He sold this to George Buckland. The other was a 12 ac. plot nearby.

On 12 Nov. 1792, for 100 pnds. , he leased back to Violet for the rest of her natural life, ½ of the old house and ½ of a 30 ac. lot. There were two other lots also leased to her at this time. The house she was to receive was the old house Daniel, sr. lived in and was now on land owned by George Buckland. Violet was to have the house moved to the 15 acs. and have it in good repair within one year.

On the same day, Violet and Daniel, jr. sold another 100 ac. lot that was adjacent to Dan's land and the stone shop.

On 3 Nov. 1792 Daniel, jr. quit claimed any rights he might have in the piece of land in E. Hartford called 5 Miles, to Timothy Burr. On 12 Nov., Timothy quit claimed his rights back to Daniel for 290 pnds.

Daniel, jr. had a partner in business but details of the name, time and type of business is not known. What is known, is that the business failed.

On 30 Jan. 1794, Daniel and Violet leased to Libbeus Andrews (388), for 72 pnds. a year, "the whole of their quarry shop, home lot, the barn and part of the house now standing on the said home lot---that is to say, excepting the parlor and south bedroom, privileges in the kitchen, chambers, cellar and of passing in and out." The deed also specified Andrews was to have wood sufficient for one fire only and it was to be cut from the "Benton" lot. Andrews was to harvest a crop of rye, thrash, clean it up and return half to Violet and Daniel. A horse wagon, sleigh and harness, all the quarry tools and farming utensils went with the deal. The above mentioned reserved parts of the house was for Violet and Daniel's use. Andrews was not to lease that to anyone. The lease was to run three years starting 1 Mar. 1794.

About this time Daniel, jr. went to Lebanon and engaged in a merchandising venture with his brother Abijah. They were not being particularly successful when a boat load of their goods went over the falls and all was lost, including two men who drowned.

While this was all going on, a hint of Daniel trying to gain more cash is in a deed of 21 Aug. 1797. Daniel of Lebanon, sold his 32 ac. lot which he had inherited from his father, to Charles Hopkins for 48 pnds. But if Daniel could repay the money with interest within the year, the deed would be null and void.

In 1798, Violet sold the property that Daniel had leased back to her. She lived a time with a daughter in Williston, VT. and awhile in Lebanon.

By 16 Jan. 1799 Daniel was broke, had lost the E. Hartford property and was warned out of Lebanon. He went to St. Armand, Can. and Polly followed Feb. 10. He worked there at brick laying and was a master builder. Later he again acquired a farm.

I have in my possession a series of letters written in 1845, 46 and 47 by Daniel, jr. to his sister Susannah Andrews in Homer, N.Y. (388)

They give insight to the regrets and sorrows and then composure of the events of his life. They also make it somewhat clearer what events occured, but still leave so many unanswered questions. The follwoing are some quotes from these letters:

"12 July 1845 - My Dear Brother and Sister, who is the only one I can address as Brother and I fear the only one as sister as I have not heard from our sister Hannah in a long time"...."highly pleased to learn that I have a sister that remembered that she once had a brother"...."when I once think of our once happy family circle (which is very often) what we were at that time and what and where we are now"...."our once pleasant home, our early apples our great yellow plums our beautiful large grapes and handsome fish pond and the finest spring of water in the world"...."I understand you to say you have been to Hartford since our Mother died. I wish you to inform me whence and when she died and whence buried and whether she suffered for any of the comforts of life in her latter days"...."I came into this country very poor as much we could do to live from day to day. You will suppose I cared but little about seeing any person I ever saw before thinking what I was once and what I was then. You know my dear sister that I lost my property and not by my own fault you know we had a sister in law that was poor and proud when she got to Lebanon she was a merchant with a batchlor brother to assist one whole family of Nieces. That was not very profatable. After our Fathers death I returned to Connecticut, if I had then settled off with my Brother and assert Trad. it would have bin well for me but I continued sending him goods without any remittence till I was obliged to sell the old farm then went to Lebanon to see if Could not save something. I got a boatload valued at 15 hundred dollars, all went over the falls, 2 men drowned. all lost then largely concerned in still work that took fire and burnt to the ground 15 hundred more after all that loosing one year then what I think enough to dishearten any one man, then turned out and settled all our debts and nothing left when I arrived in Canada all we had except our waring cloes was not worth over 100 dollars. the interest of my money now is 150 dollars a year which is just enough to saport us and the principal leave to the next generation."

Daniel mentions his eyesight failing and that sister Hannah was also blind. He excuses himself in each letter for the slanting lines and poor writing, All things considered, I found the grammer and spelling was quite correct enough, but the punctuation or lack of it, left much to be desired.

We always have better hindsight than foresight, but Daniel had come to terms and had faith in the Lord. He wrote in 1846: "although I enjoy a good state of health now have had a very poor turn was taken ill very sudden the 7th. Nov. last, the first of my riding out was on New Years day, for four weeks of the time kept my room and bed most the time. Had a Doctor Shady, but through the mercy of God has seen fit to spare me a little longer for what purpose am unable to say as I tell them, I have done all the good and the hurt I expect to do..."

On 7 May 1833 Hannah gave a sworn statement at St. Lawrence Co. N.Y. to aid Daniel, jr. in obtaining his pension for Rev. service.

Her statement included the fact that she lived with her father Daniel Chandler at East Hartford during the Revolutionary War. She also remembered very well the summer of 1779 when her brother Abijah was drafted to serve as a militia man but sent word back in a few days that he was unwell and her brother Daniel went instead. She also stated Daniel served for Benjamin Mann and for himself.

Libbeus was a minor when his father died. The 1771 birthdate originally thought to be his, is not correct. A Probate Court record of 28 Mar. 1780 shows him to be over 14 yrs. of age and choosing his Mother to be his guardian. On 15 May 1780 the court records show a division of Benjamin Andrews estate to include half to the minor heirs and half to an Elijah Andrews, probably Libbeus's uncle. The "Andrews Memorial" states that in May of 1780, Libbeus received a double portion of his father's estate, but this record was not personally seen.

Libbeus worked for his father-in-law in the stone quarry. On 30 Jan. 1794 he leased from Daniel, jr. and Violet Chandler the whole of the quarry, buildings and lots.*

In the midst of, in spite of, or perhaps because of, Daniel, jr.'s financial problems, Libbeus and Susannah moved to Cortland Co. in late 1799 or early 1800.

Rufus graduated from Harvard in 1765 and studied law with his Uncle James Putnam (287). He was admitted to the bar in 1768 and opened an office in Worcester. He practiced there until Sep. 1774 when the courts were closed. He was accurate, methodical and as economical with his clients money as his own.

In 1774 he publicly protested the "riotous, disorderly and seditious practices" of the Worcester mob "under the disguise of patriotism".

He went to Eng. in late 1774 but soon returned and served with the Association of Loyalists at the seige of Boston.

He went to Halifax, N.S. in 1776 and was proscribed and banished in 1778.

Eleanor went with Rufus to Halifax but left Elizabeth with her Grandmother Chandler. Mary used part of Rufus's estate for the support of Elizabeth, but the remainder, appraised at 820 pnds. 9s was confiscated.

Grandmother Mary Chandler died in 1783 and Eleanor near that time. Rufus then had Elizabeth join him.

He went back and forth among various Canadian towns and Eng. trying to find a place for himself and eventually his daughter.

Rufus and his father were in Nova Scotia in July 1786 but found the weather disagreeable and as there were already so many starving lawyers there, Rufus thought it would be impossible to make a living.

He finally returned to London and settled there and Elizabeth returned to Worcester and married.

Rufus claimed 287 pnds. per annum as his loss of income during the war and was allowed 240 pnds. and a pension of 120 pnds.

He was appointed 2 June 1783 to be an examiner of Loyalist claims.

Being a Loyalist, his property valued at 256 pnds. 1s 10p was confiscated.

He made acknowledgements satisfactory to his townsmen who voted that since he was sorry for his past conduct, they would treat him as a friend and neighbor as long as he should behave well. It is probable that he was able to regain his property and possessions that were confiscated.

He lived in Brattleboro, VT. where he was a J.P. 1789-95. He then moved to Hinsdale, N.H.

His father-in-law, Timothy Ruggles, was also a Loyalist, a lawyer and a tavernkeeper. He died in 1798 in Digby, N.S. at age 87.

Gardiner's will dated 7 June 1811 gave: The heirs of his daughter Sarah personal things which had been her Mother's such as a looking glass and books. Royal Marble Chandler, an adopted son*, received all of the real estate and wearing apparel. But half of all this would belong to his Mother during her life plus $100 in cash. The rest of Gardiner's estate was to be divided in three equal shares between Sarah's heirs, Elizabeth and Charles. The estate was valued at 569 pnds. 8s 9p.

He was rejected as a minister at E. Windsor, Conn. in 1783, but preached the fall of that year in Worcester. He returned to Worcester a year later (Oct. 1784-Jan. 1785) and filled the pulpit for the ailing minister. At the death of the regular minister, the town refused to settle Aaron as their minister or to support two societies.

Aaron then supported his family by taking in pupils and boarders.

In 1825 he joined a group of young liberals to form the American Unitarian Assoc. and he served as President until 1836.

Lucretia was to have possessed a great vigor of mind and spirit.

George entered Harvard at the age of thirteen. He then went to Gottingen University in German, which was a rather unusual event for those times. He pursued theology and philology and received a Dr. of philosophy and a M.A. in Sept. 1820.

He was not successful at preaching so he accepted a position to teach Greek at Harvard. He taught from 1822 to 1833.

He authored the first comprehensive history of the United States which in contained in ten vols. The first volume was printed in 1834 and the full title is "History of the United States From the Discovery of the American Continent to the Present Time".

George was appointed the Sec. of the Navy by President Polk. He was very instrumental in seeing his dreams come true with the establishment of the Navel Academy at Annapolis, MD. in 1845.

In Sep. 1846 he was appointed the U.S. Minister to Great Britain and served in that post three yrs. He was later appointed Minister to Berlin and served there 1867 to 1874.

He had a winter home in N.Y. for many years, but after his return from Berlin he settled in Washington, D.C. His summer retreat was at Newport, R.I.

Although Philemon was raised in Andover, he purchased land in Pomfret, Conn. 8 Oct. 1696 and moved there shortly after. He purchased this land from Thomas and Elizabeth Ruggles who had inherited it from their father.

Philemon was a weaver.

He went to Woodstock in 1699 but stayed there just a short time before returning to Pomfret. He had 600 acs. of what was considered some of the best farm land in Pomfret.

He became clerk for the propriotors of the Mashamoquet Purchase 3 May 1713. He also was a signer of the petition to incorporate Mashamoquet into a town. At a General Court meeting 14 May 1713, the name of the town was changed from Mashamoquet to Pomfret in honor of a town in England.

At the first regular town meeting 7 Dec. 1719, Phlemon was chosen first selectman.

He was a Lt. of the train band (or militia) from 11 May 1714 to May 1721.

Chandler Hill and The South Burying Ground were part of his farm.

John b. 19 Mar. 1739/40 Haverhill

Samuel was educated at Harvard although it seemed his father would have preferrred Cambridge. He entered the Ministry and settled at York, ME. He received a church in Gloucester, Mass. in 1751.

He kept many diaries and recorded many visits, in the 1740's and 50's, to the family home in Andover. In Jan. 1746 he noted in a diary that he had written the genealogy of his family.

He received 20s as a token gift grom his father's estate since he had already received his liberal education.

Alexander went on a fifteen month whaling voyage in 1850, sailing on the Margaretta out of Boston. He then signed on as 2nd. mate on a merchant ship and soon was promoted to 1st. mate.

After three yrs. of sailing he returned to Pomfret and purchased his grandfather's homestead from the heirs. He rebuilt the neglected farm and worked it.

He joined the 1st. VT. Calvary, Co. E as a 2nd. Lt. He made 1st. Lt. 4 June 1864. The Capt. of that company was killed and Alexander assumed that rank. He and his company were captured at Stoney Creek Station. He did escape and made his way back to the Union lines.

His health suffered from these events but he farmed awhile longer and then went into business in Boston.

Administration of William Cleaves estate was given to Sarah, 1 May 1676. The total worth was 85 pnds. 1s, which included the house, land, wearing apparel, one swine and one cow.

William was under the command of Capt. Samuel Wadsworth and was killed by Indians during the Sudbury fight of King Philip's war.

In some records a fourth mar. to a Mr. Allen is given for Sarah.

Numerous records and several town's records were checked, but I was unable to find any additional information on this family. That is not to say all resources were exhausted, but I only spent the time I deemed practical.

PREFACE

This volume was compiled to benefit the family of David J. Read. Therefore, their line from the immigrant to the Read reference is more complete and extensive.

There is a caution however. David J. Read descends from John Chandler (5). You will also find a Read marriage at the end of the descent from Hannah Chandler Abbot (3). At present there is no verification that the two Read lines connect, but research is continuing. Much of the material on line (3) has been contributed by Pat McKnight Read, Berea, OH. There is a third Read reference on page 12 and no connection has been made to either of the others refered to.

Another credit is due Barbara Bean, Concord, N.H. for her contribution of Bayford information.

NOTES

To use this book: It is numbered consecutively throughout. It is in sections by the children of the immigrants and the index will give the page number.
In a list of children: If a name is written all in capitals, you will find that name and number listed as a parent in the next generation. If the name is not capitalized, there is no further information.
Maiden names: maiden names will be found in these brackets [ ].
Spouse and allied birthplaces: In some instances, the person's exact birthplace was not proven. In that place will be the name of the town most closely associated with that family. It may be where the spouse was living at the time of marriage or a place the parents were known to be. It was given as an additional research clue for anyone interested in pursing the allied line.
Cross-references: There are many inter-marriages of allied lines and cousins. I have attempted to cross-reference them, by putting the reference number in parentheses following the name.
Un-numbered people: There are a few children without numbers who were found too late to be inserted with numbers. This does not affect the rest of the system.

William Chandler brought his family from England on The Abigail, a ship in the Winthrop Fleet. He settled in Roxbury, Mass. in 1637 and owned 22 acs. there by 1638. He was made freeman in 1640.

To become a freeman, which was a political right, a man must own land, be a Congregational or Puritan Church member in good standing and be 21 yrs. or older. He then took an oath to serve his government, vote intelligently and attend church.

Unfortunately, William was not to enjoy a long life. He suffered with consumption for nearly a year before he died. It would have been impossible for his family to survive if it had not been for the assistance of his neighbors. They were quite generous to the man they considered very religious and Godly.

As a widow with five young children, Annis had to have had a great struggle to keep her family together.

About a year and a half after William's death, Annis married John Dane of Roxbury. He was born at Barkamstead, Bishops, Eng. He was made freeman at Roxbury 2 June 1641. John had also been married previously and had sons John and Francis and a daughter Elizabeth who married a Mr. How. John, sr. lived some time in Ipswich, Mass. and his son John remained there.

In 1649 John went to General Court to settle William Chandlr's estate. Since John had paid Chandler's debts which amounted to more than Chandler's house and land was worth, and also had raised Chandler's children, the court awarded Dane all of Chandler's property.

John died 14 Sep. 1658 in Roxbury leaving provisions by will for "Annice" and his three children by his first marriage.

Annis married for the third time, John Parmenter, who was born in 1588 and buried in Roxbury 1 Mar. 1671. He was a yeoman and a selectman in Roxbury in 1639. He removed to Sudbury, Mass. and was a Church Deacon there. He had.

* - some records give 19 Nov.
¶ - information provided by Mrs. Barbara Bean

several children by his first marriage and his will mentions a son John, a grandson John and wife "Annie". One of his daughters married John Wood of "Malbery".

Annis wrote her will 1 Nov. 1672 and it was probated 15 Nov. 1683. She left her son John Chandler the estate willed her by John Dane. In turn, John Chandler was to pay her sons John Dane, Thomas and William Chandler, sums of money. To her daughters Hannah Abbot and Sarah Cleves she left all her personal belongings. She requested her sister Mary Wise to "Wisely" divide the belongings with her cousins Elizabeth Denison and Anna Stebbins assisting. Thomas and John Chandler were named executors.

Annis's father, Francis, was bp. 13 Apr. 1567 and died shortly before 3 Dec. 1622. He was a husbandman or gentleman farmer and owned a fair portion of land in England. Annis's brother Richard was about 3 yrs. older and her brother John about 1 year. younger than her. Their father left his home and other property to Richard and he was to pay his sister 6 pnds. John also received property and likewise was to pay Annis 6 pnds.

Thomas was about seven when he arrived in Boston with his parents. He grew up in Roxbury, Mass. and became a property owner there.

He had moved his family to Andover, Mass. by 1678, being the 23rd. settler, there.

He was a representative to the General Court from Andover 1678-79. George Abbot, sr. and Thomas worked on the committee to survey and divide the lands of Andover which were granted these proprietors by the General Court.

Thomas gained local fame for his actions during the Indian Wars. He served in the Militia as a Lieutenant in "ye foot company" under the command of Capt. Dudley Bradstreet.

He became a blacksmith and developed those talents into a large ironworks.

At this period of history, women had no legal rights, so a husband had to provide fully for his wife in case she survived him. Thomas provided thusly for Hannah: 2 cows; she was to have use of the room they now lived in and it was to be kept warm and comfortable by their son Henry and the firewood was to be cut and brought to her room. For food he specified 10 bu. Indian corn, 10 bu. wheat, 3 bu. rye and 1 bu. malt, to be paid yearly by their sons in specific proportions he names. Henry was also to see that she had apples and a barrel of "cyder". 40s a year from Thomas' income from the ironworks was also to be paid to Hannah.

Thomas was among the most influential and wealthy of the early settlers.

He had a good clear handwriting but Hannah made her mark.

33. son

William settled on land provided by his father on 12 June 1697. His father deeded this land (60 acs.) including the house, barns and orchards. Within three months of his inheritance, William sold it all and moved to Westford.

There may have been a hint of displeasure shown when Thomas willed William's three sons a piece of meadow and a bit of swamp to divide equally among themselves. If any died before they came of age, the survivors were to divide it. There is no indication that William was deceased when Thomas made his will, but he is not listed as an heir.

Moses was a blacksmith.

He served in the French and Indian wars. He was a member of the Committees of Inspection and Safety in 1780, in Winthrip, ME.

The Committee of Safety was an executive body established to direct the struggle against the British rule. The Committee of Inspection was to check and report violations of the boycott against British trade. Whether they called themselves a Committee, the Son's of Liberty or just a Whig, these secret organizations were the power that led the colonies into the revolution against England.

The Abbot Genealogy states that George immigrated on the same ship (The Abigail) as the Chandlers.

He had lived in Yorkshire, Eng. and arrived in N.E. in 1637.

He went to Andover, Mass. in 1643 and Hannah followed in 1647 to make a home in their log and thatch cabin.

George was involved in the town affairs and worked with Thomas Chandler in laying out the town.

In 1680, a Mr. Dane, George Abbot and Dudley Bradstreet were appointed, at a town meeting, to "seat the meeting house". If any man or woman sat in any seat except where assigned, they would be fined 20p, to be paid to the town.

George began his will by saying he was "aged and crasey in body". He left a double portion to his eldest son John, which was customary for the time. The rest was left to Hannah to disperse among the other sons as she saw fit. He did request she treat them equally unless they were disobedient and their behavior caused them to be cut short.

It was unusual in those times, for a wife to be given such a responsibility. George had great praise for Hannah's love and prudence in helping to get and save what God had blessed them with.

Hannah later became the third wife of Rev. Francis Dane, her step-brother. He was about 74 yrs. old when they married. His sons Nathaniel and Lt. Francis were from a previous marriage.

The area Francis and Hannah lived in, was set off as North Andover by the time they married. Rev. Dane was the 2nd. Minister at the church there.

Until 1683 the Rev.'s salary was paid in wheat and Indian corn. At that time, the town voted to pay 5 pnds. of his salary in silver.

The year of 1692 had considerable dealings with withcraft. The Rev. tried to help people imprisioned for witchcraft and he was impicated in their dealings. It was a difficult period for him, but his traits of piety and uprightness alone, cleared his name.

From his estate, Hannah received 20 pnds. and the chests and goods she had brought into the marriage.

A 6 ft. high by 3 ft. square monument was erected behind the United Church of Christ in Andover, Mass. It's inscription is:

George Abbot born in England was one
of the first settlers of Andover, AD 1643
where in 1647 he married Hannah Chandler
He died Dec. 1681 age 66. She died June
1711 82 yrs. Their descendants in reverence

John was a tanner, and from 27 Jan. 1661 (and several years thereafter), he was a gravedigger in Roxbury.

He owned 10 acs. of land in Roxbury and his home was on this lot. He and Elizabeth sold this property 6 Dec. 1686 which coincides with their move to New Roxbury.

A deed dated 1 May 1686 names six men, including John, purchasing 15,100 acs. of land in the Wabbaquasset country. They purchased from Maj. Fitch and it was commonly called the Mashamoquet* purchase. The deed stipulated that the land was to be divided into 14 equal shares - 12 held by grantees and 2 shares by Maj. Fitch. Additional men from Roxbury were soon found to make the 12 required. The Indian Owaneco and Josiah, his eldest son, also signed this deed. The deed can be seen at the Town Hall in Pomfret. A number of different problems delayed the division of land for eight years. When it was finally done, John was the 7th. in line to receive his share. The Indian upheavels then delayed the settlement. By then, most of the families had settled in Woodstock.

From 1686 until 1749, New Roxbury was governed by Mass. even though it was situated in Conn. In 1749, the Conn. General Assembly deemed a 1713 decision void and they became a Conn. town.

John had lot #10 in the first division of land and lot #21 in 1698. He accumulated other property in New Roxbury and inherited 50 acs. of land from his Mother in Roxbury, Mass.

New Roxbury's name was changed to Woodstock 18 Mar. 1690. The first town meeting was held 31 Mar. 1690 and John was chosen a selectman at the following Nov. meeting.

In Oct. 1691 the townsmen formed a committee to draw up plans for a meeting house. It was to be 30 ft. long, 26 ft. wide and 14 ft. stud. John was chosen to hire men and assign the work on this project.

---

* - pronounced Mashmugget

He was on the committee formed 12 Mar. 1688 to lay out the highways of Woodstock. He was also granted a piece of town land for 5 yrs. to experiment with tobacco growing.

Until 1696 most of the Woodstock families still belonged to the Roxbury Church. When Woodstock organized their own church that year, John was one of the first Deacon's chosen.

On the first of June§, John wrote his rather lengthy will. He provided Elizabeth, during her widowhood, his house to dwell in, 1 milk cow, a bed and furniture, neccessary utensils and 8 pnds. cash per year. If she required more it was to be paid by the children according to the proportion they received from his estate. If she remarried she would only recieve 12 pnds. total. His estate was appraised at 512 pnds. 6p. Among the items listed in the inventory were: books, arms and ammunition, 12 head of cattle, 1 old horse, 1 swine, a chest of drawers, 6 Turkey wrought chairs, a looking glass, a pair of money scales, pewter, brass and iron ware. There was also mustard seed and "barley in the barn".

He made stipulations for his children and grandchildren which will be mentioned later.

John is buried at Woodstock Hill Cem. and his stone is very readable. His son John and at least eight other family members are buried by him.

Elizabeth was the daughter of William Douglas b. about 1610 in Scotland and Anne Mattle, also born about 1610, the daughter of Thomas. William and Anne were in Ipswich, Mass. by 1641 and Boston by 1645. William was a cooper and was made freeman in 1646. In 1659 they moved to New London, Conn. where he received a land grant in 1663 from King Charles II. Douglas was considered the governor of the New Haven Colony.

Besides Elizabeth, the Douglas's had: Ann b. 1637 m. Nathaniel Geary; Robert b. 1639 m. Mary Hempstead; Sarah b. 8 Apr. 1643 m. John Keeny; William

Elizabeth was in New London when she died, perhaps visitng relatives, and she may be buried there.

It is rather exciting to go back to the town of an ancestor--240 years after his death--and have that ancestor remembered.

The town clerk referred to him as "The Land Grabber" and after a little more investigation, it became quite clear how he gained this nickname. He had immense land holdings and was involved in every aspect of community business.

If he wasn't a grantee or grantor, he was probably the Justice of the Peace who took the oath for the deed, the town clerk who recorded them or the surveyor who laid out the lines. For the 55 yrs. he lived in Woodstock, John was probably one of the best known men.

John was assigned his first lot in New Roxbury in 1688.

On 24 Feb. 1690/1 he was elected town clerk and served several terms. In 1694, he was granted 30 acs. of land for his work as town clerk. John was also the first representative sent to General Court from Woodstock in 1711.

The Minister's house was to be raised in early 1692. That building was to be 40 ft. long, 19 ft. wide and 14 ft. stud with a stack of 4 chimneys. Two gables were to be raised and covered also. The workmen were to bring the weekly accounts to John.

About 1690 he was selected to teach the town children to read, write and cipher. He taught for 8 yrs. By 1737 almost every man in New England could sign his name and reading was required to be taught in every Mass. town.*

In 1697 the war between England and France exposed the N.E. colonies to Indian barbarities. Bands of Mohawks ravaged the woods and committed shocking atrocities. Feelings of insecurity and alarm pervaded every Conn. resident. Isolated settlements like Woodstock were especially exposed. Watch houses were fortified. The General Assembly had ordered in Oct. 1696 that settlements like Woodstock were considered a frontier and by this act, it prevented inhabitants from leaving town without special permission or else suffer heavy penalties. John was appointed supervisor of the friendly Wabbaquaset and Mohegan Indians and directed them where to hunt and what sign to wear. The signs identified and thus protected them from English scouting parties.

Each town had it's own militia company. Each company elected it's own officers. This practice put a premium on popularity, so rank in the militia usually reflected a person's social station. The military spirit was strong in Woodstock and was greatly influenced by John and his sons. At various times he held the title of Col., Capt. and Maj. but the title of Col. stayed with him throughout life.

Militiamen provided their own weapons, usually a smoothbore musket, and ammunition, clothing and food for short expeditions. The local units held their own training programs. Expedition into Indian lands were usually by volunteer but a man could be drafted. The wealthy could buy a substitute and all service was of a short term.

In 1698 John took his family to New London, Conn. and was granted a license to keep a house of entertainment.

He returned to Woodstock in 1703, when his father died. His father left him a double portion of his alnd, the house and homestead. The east end of the house and the shop was already John's so this was not included. He was executor of his father' estate.

Quite soon after returning to Woodstock, John was appointed the town surveyor. In June 1714 he was commissioned to survey the line between Conn. and Mass. He became a Justice of the Peace in 1707.

He surveyed and laid out many towns in the northeastern section of Conn. and nearly every farm in them. The original 1719 survey map of Pomfret can still be seen at the town hall. He made purchases in Killingly, Pomfret, Ashford and Woodstock. He was considered the second greatest landowner in the area. Maj. Fitch was the largest landowner and John worked for him in surveying many of Fitch's land sales.

The New Scituate purchase in the town of Ashford was probably John's largest purchase. There were eight co-owners from Scituate in Plymouth Co. Mass. buying a 9,600 ac. tract from Maj. James Fitch. They held varying proportions, John's being 2/16ths. or 1,200 acs. He subsequently purchased other shares and resold them later. Samuel, Thomas, Joshua and John Chandler, jr. were among the purchasers from John.

There were so many deeds recorded on which John's name appeared, in Ashford, that it would have taken weeks to read through them all.

A deed of 19 Oct. 1722 by Thomas Fitch, Boston, gave power of attorney to his trusty friend Capt. John Chandler of Woodstock. It included a special commission to lay out, affix, settle and determine the boundry line between Fitch's tract of land situated in the town of Pomfret which adjoined the land of Mr. Samuel Warner. John was to settle with Warner once and for all, any disputes and differences concerning the boundries between their lands and if need be, John could pursue and prosecute within the law, to oblige and compel Warner to settle.

John became a member of The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Co. in 1725. This is the oldest military organization in the U.S. It was formed in Boston in 1637 and it's members were the leading citizens of Boston. The company took an active part in the Rev. War, but now it is mainly a social organization.

In 1731 Woodstock was included in the new county of Worcester. John was made Judge of Probate and Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas. The first session of court was held at Judge John's Woodstock home and much legal and public business was dealt with.

John stirred some heated controversy by not delivering the town books to his successor. He claimed that the propriotors records were written amongst the town records and he would not re-write either without some compensation. He wanted 20 pnds. for the service but the town refused to pay more than 10 pnds.

Eventually John was paid 25 pnds. for his 26 yrs. town clerk service and the other demands were conceded.

The Boston Gazette carried this obituary: "Woodstock, Aug. 12, 1743. After nine days illness, the tenth instant, died Hon. John Chandler of this town, in the 79th. year of his age, and this day his remains were decently interred and accompanied to the grave by a vast concourse of people from this and neighboring towns. He was one of the first settlers, to whose wisdom and prudence the order and regularity of Woodstock was largely owing. He was in the Commission of Peace 40 yrs., one of the Council several years which office he serviced with much honor and acceptance".

Moses, sr. was a blacksmith and a member of The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Co. of Mass., being inducted in 1693.

Neither Hannah nor Moses lived to see their children grown. Moses's brother James became young Hannah's guardian 1 Aug. 1695. Joshua Gee, another uncle, was named Moses, jr.'s guardian. Gee was a Boston shipwright.

Moses, sr. died intestate and after his debts were settled, his estate was valued at 175 pnds. 13s 9p. One third went to his wife Mary. Moses, jr. received a double portion, or 78 pnds. 1s 8p and young Hannah received 39 pnds. 10p. The children's portion was to be held in trust by their guardians until they were of age.

Hannah also received 10 pnds. from her grandfather Chandler's estate.

Moses, jr.'s death left his estate of 127 pnd. to his sister Hannah and her husband. It included property in Woodstock which was sold to an Ebenezer Weld. The house, land and blacksmith shop in Roxbury originally belonging to Moses, sr., also came into their hands.

Joseph was just 20 yrs. old when his father died, but was willed a very good portion of land to support himself with.

He received 114 acs. in the Mashamoquet purchase called the "lot on the line". This land had good soil, which was easily cleared and smooth hills with few trees. The animals grazed through the winters on the course native grass and were in excellant shape in the spring.

The deeds show that Joseph sold 102 acs. which orginally was part of the 3rd. division belonging to Dea. Chandler, to Nathaniel Sessions in 1704. He sold another 100 ac. tract in 1706.

By the late 1690's the Indian hostilities had settled down and Mashamoquet was slowly settled. By 1713 there were about 45 families living in the area.

Joseph himself, did not settle on his Mashamaquet property until his marriage. The "Genealogies of Woodstock Families" has a picture of Joseph's home taken ca 1930. In 1983, the same home, in beautiful repair and landscaping, is still standing. A stone pillar at the roadside has a plaque with the inscription "Joseph Chandler - 1708".

Mashamoquet was recognized as a settlement in itself, the town incorporated in May 1713, and the name was changed to Pomfret.

Joseph was a selectman in 1716 with Dea. Philemon Chandler and Abel Paine. He was admitted to the Pomfret Church 20 Apr. 1719. He served as a tax collector in 1726.

His horse and cattle mark was a "swallow tail in ye near ear".

He was elected the Capt. of the Train Band 26 Sep. 1728, with Nathaniel Sessions as the Lt. and Noah Sabin the Ensign. The Train Band or "trained band" was later known as the militia.

The west part of Pomfret was generally occupied by sons of the original propriotors and settlers. David, the 3rd. child of Joseph, was among this group.

With the amount of property Joseph had, and was a seemingly wealthy person, it was quite surprising to find that he had no will or intestate proceedings.

John was one of the three men (including his father) who surveyed and laid out the line between Mass. and Conn. in 1714. As he engaged in surveying as did his father, and since their names are the same, it is difficult to prove who actually surveyed what.

John went to New London, married and his first 3 children were born while there. All their births are recorded in Woodstock, however.

When John was a Maj. of a company of scouts in 1724, he impressed 20 men for frontier service. They guarded the town of Worcester*. The presence of these soldiers may have saved Worcester from desolation and destruction.

He was appointed Coroner of Worcester Co. in 1728 while still living in Woodstock. About 1731 he was requested by the Worcester residents to move there and he found it would be advantageous to do so.

John became more involved in the town's affairs. When the courts were established in Worcester in 1731, he was appointed clerk of all the courts and remained so until 1754. He represented Worcester at the State Leg. 1732-35, 1737-40 and 1742-53. He was the town Treasurer 1741-52 and Registrar of Deeds until 1762.

His appointment to Judge came 19 Apr. 1754 and in May 1757 he became the Chief Justice.

He staunchly supported both government and church. His doors were always open to ministers of all faiths. He was also known to bring home and feed the widows and orphans who were brought before his court.

He loved to promote all good. A spirited conversation was a great delight to him. His talents were brilliant and showy and he was cheerful, full of jest and hilarity.

He was listed as an heir in Esther's¶ will and he gave his brother Samuel power of attorney to settle peacebly and fairly by legal means. The power of attorney document was dated 5 May 1756.

This man headed a family that was immensely respected and had substantial influence over the residents of Worcester until the Revolution.

In the settlement of their father's estate, 26 Mar. 1750, John of Worcester, William of Killingly, Samuel and Thomas of Woodstock and Thomas and Mehitable Buckminster of Brookfield, sold their shares of inherited land to Joshua. This tract was in the south east corner of Ashford¶ and contained 148½ acs. He paid 80 pnds. 6s 8p old tenor. Furthermore, he was to keep their kinsman Joseph Maccoy§ for 10 years, which part of the time had already expired.

Joseph Maccoy was retarded and it appears his grandfather had custory of him. Upon John's death, Joshua took temporary custody and then by agreement with his brothers and sister, continued to care for him. Joseph was the son of Joshua's sister Mary and it is not known what happened to her or her husband.

Joshua had the interesting distinction of owning the first clock in Woodstock.

He was a yeoman and a highway surveyor in 1731.

He was the first to take up land in his father's "out division" which eventually became West Woodstock.

Many people in this line are buried in Bungay Hill Cemetery.

He was a farmer and surveyor.

Jemima inherited land from her father, which was from his grandfather, Capt. Thomas Bradbury. This land was located in Salisbury, Mass. and Jemima and William sold it in 1726.

Jemima was a bright, kind, intelligent and religious person. An exemplary person in every way.

The Pomfret town record of 4 Apr. 1757 shows that William's original will and records were burned. The clerk, Samuel Sumner, testified that the now recorded copy is a true copy to the best of his remembrance. The will on record is dated 1 May 1753.

William gave his son Thomas Bradbury "my negro man Robert after his Mother's decease, but if Robert chose not to move so far from his friends and would rather live with another son, then Thomas shall have the value of Robert in cash". "The liberal college education and other expenses since leaving college shall be Thomas's full share and portion and I (William) hope he is satisfied with it".

Among the items William willed to Jemima was his chaise and furniture and one-half of his personal estate. She was also granted the use and improvement of the house and homestead while bringing up the youngest children to age. Should Jemima remain his widow after the youngest child is of age, she still would have the use and improvements of half the homestead all her natural life.

William's daughters Jemima, Mary and Mehitable were to receive the other half of his moveable and personal estate. They were also to receive all other lands in Woodstock and Killingly not already disposed of and whatever was still coming from William's father's estate--all to be equally divided. William, Henry and Winthrop were also to provide money and goods to them. The girls later received 510 pnds. 10s from their grandfather's estate to be divided between them.

Henry was to receive the rest of the homestead, sharing it with Winthrop, after their Mother's decease. They were to pay their sister's 200 pnds. old tenor within 2 yrs. of coming into full possession. Henry did not live long enough to come into his inheritance.

Among the items listed in the inventory of William's estate were: wearing apparel - 10 pnd. 16s 3p; table linen - 2 pnd. 16s 3-; pewter, tin, brass and copper; two iron pots, one kettle and a frying pan - 15s; ironing box and heaters - 6s; two pairs of andirons, cranes, shovels, tongs and tramel - 1 pnd.; 17s; teapot and spoons - 15s 8p; case of draws; one dozen of cain back chairs - 1 pnd. 9s; 2 locking glasses - 18s; one case of knives and forks - 9s; books and shoemakers tools; woolen wheel; joiners tools; farming tools; cooper's jointer and wooden vise; tools for cutting great screws; "winder frames sashes sash stuff and casements" - 8s; one horse, one cow; bellows and blacksmith tools; one swine, two cattle. Total value of this estate was 352 pnds. 1s 1-. The inventory was taken 9 Apr. 1756.

It would seem that William had a very self-sufficient farm with all the varied tradesman tools he owned.

James was living in S. Brimfield, Mass. when he married. He was a cooper.

He then moved to Woodstock and lived on land owned by his father-in-law, but later they returned to S. Brimfield.

Elizabeth inherited 31-3/4 acs., with buildings, in Woodstock; 10-3/4 acs. at Harth Stones; 200 acs. in Ashford and a tract in Thompson. Her father bought these lots in 1729, sold them to John and Mehitable Coit in 1734, but they were later returned to John's estate.

James's name appears on a quit claim deed 7 May 1750 signing off to Samuel Chandler. On 14 Mar. 1757 James sold several small tracts to John Chandler of Worcester. These had been purchased from his father-in-law, Uncle Samuel Chandler and a 1/7 share from William Chandler.

One 1 Sep. 1765 James took a letter of transfer from the church at Woodstock to the church in Brimfield*, Mass.

No in depth research was done, but the deaths of James and Elizabeth did not appear in the vital records of S. Brimfield.

Thomas was known to be very involved in the public affairs of Woodstock. He was the first representative elected to the Conn. Assembly in 1749 when Woodstock broke from Mass. government.

This is probably the Thomas who was selectman of Woodstock 3 Apr. 1750. And if he was the same Thomas who was Recorder of deeds in that time period, he had clear neat handwriting.

He served with distinction in several early military campaigns and was entrusted with many important commissions in Mass. and Conn. He served as Lt. Col. at Cape Breton in 1745.

The French were in possession of Cape Breton and by the English re-capturing it, communication between France and Quebec was shut off. In British hands, our coasts were secure and movement by the French in the St. Lawrence was obstructed.

Thomas purchased 65 acs. for 1,100 pnds. from Joshua Chandler in 1753. He sold 45 acs. of this tract to Moses Chandler* in May 1754 for 765 pnds. in bills of credit. Then on 25 Apr. 1754 Thomas sold 46 acs. 108 rods of land to Joshua for 600 pnds. in bills of public credit. Thomas reserved the right to cart or sled wood from his land north of the sold lot, through the said lot, by the most convenient place.

On 7 May 1756 he sold his remaining rights to his father's property estate (not already disposed of) to Samuel Chandler for 112 pnds., bills of credit.

A bill of credit would be similar to an I.O.U. It could specify a certain amount of hours work or goods to the value of the stated sum instead of an actual cash value. These bills of credit could be passed from one person to another, the same as cash, if both parties were agreeable to such an exchange. The person holding the bill, could call in the service, with a respectable lengths notice, at any time he wished.

Neighbor Abel Stiles and Thomas entered an agreement upon the town books 5 Apr. 1760 on tending a fence that ran between their houses. Chandler was to enjoy, repair and mend the western half and Stiles was to do the same for the eastern half. They set a penalty of 100 pnds or to pay all damages caused by neglect.

Thomas was named executor of Esther's¶ estate. Samuel, John of Worcester, Joshua, Elizabeth, Lemuel, Jemima, jr., James and Elizabeth Frizzel and Thomas and Mehitable Buckminster quit claimed their rights to the estate. They also acknowledged they received from Thomas what was willed to them and that he is to pay any further debts against Esther's estate out of his shares. One share of her estate was valued at 510 pnds. 10s.

About 1761, Thomas went to Walpole, N.H. intending to settle there. But in 1764 he moved to Cumberland Co. N.H. and helped form the township of Chester. In 1766 he obtained a land patent for the town of Chester, VT. He received the patent from the Governor of N.Y. and by that event, Thomas was held to be a Tory. He and sons John and Thomas were allowed their choice of 500 acs. each as the first three settlers.

Thomas was the Chief Justice in 1775 and he was induced to favor the Tory side of the Whig and Loyalist difficulty. The Whigs put him in jail at Westminster, VT. for the duration of the war.

Later in life he lost his money and was imprisioned for debts, again at Westminster. He died while there. One account states he is buried within the limits of the jail, but others say his reamins were disposed of without ceremony.

Williams bought a house, store and farm on Woodstock Hill in 1784. Abigail inherited 1/3 of her parents indoor moveables and 13 pnds. in silver.

The first public record of Joseph, jr. seems to be the deed stating: "I Joseph Chandler of Pomfret in ye county of Windham and gentleman for and in consideration of ye parental love and affection which I have unto my son Joseph Chandler, jr. of Pomfret aforesaid, ye saddler and for his settlement and advancement in ye world..." dated 15 June 1732. The tract deeded at this time was situated on the southwest corner of Joseph, srs. homestead and was 20 acs. 2 "rood" and 28 perch in size.

The early deeds most often specified the trade or occupation of the grantees and grantors which is extremely helpful in following the life of that person.

On 6 Mar. 1733 Joseph, jr. purchased 11½ acs. more land in Pomfret for 80 pnds.

Sometimes a very odd size or shaped parcel of land was purchased or sold and perhaps it was to make a more regular shaped boundry. One such tract was 12 rods in size, that Joseph purchased from Josiah Sabin. It abutted Joseph's previously owned land. Joseph paid 20s in bills of credit 6 May 1743 for it.

He purchased two tracts from his father on 27 Nov. 1749. He paid 100 pnds. for a 5½ ac. lot which was part of the homestead and another 3 acs. that was adjacent. Joseph, sr. reserved the right to pass through either tract to get to other lands he still owned.

There were numerous other land transactions credited to Joseph, the saddler,

through the 1750's.

Joseph paid 320 pnds. to his brothers and sisters for the rights to 20 acs. of their brother Stephen's estate in 1752.

His will was written 9 May 1780. He provided very generously for his wife. These provisions included: use and improvement of the west room in his dwelling house, privileges in the kitchen and half the garden, necessary yard room, cellar room, use of the well and use of half of all his indoor moveables, all during her natural life. She was to have sufficient wood cut by son Joseph, use of the horse and chaise as much as she needed them, his clock and two cows. Their son Joseph was also to provide her with 16 bu. Indian corn annually, 5 bu rye, 4 bu wheat, 3 barrel of cider, 1½ bu. malt, a sufficient amount of good beef, 12 pnds. of good flax and 10 pnds of good wool, all to be delivered in their proper season. She was also to receive 20 spanish milled dollars or their equivilant in silver at a rate of 6s 8p a year.

David received from his father "for parental love and affection" a 67 ac. tract in Pomfret, with the exception of the parcel that was in controversy between Joseph, sr. and Nathaniel Johnson over the layout of the highway. The deed was made 6 Mar. 1734/5 and the lot valued at 100 pnds. This tract was in the 2nd. Division in the western part of the Mashamoquet purchase.

Mary's father, Daniel Allin, was also an original proprietor of Pomfret.

David had purchased land in Pomfret, VT. but sold his rights 16 Aug. 1761 to Isaac Dana.

David served in the Rev. and was blind for some time before his death.

Daniel's parental settlement "for love and affection which I have and to have toward my well beloved son Daniel" was a 58 ac. tract in Pomfret valued at 400 pnd. old tenor. The deed was written 10 Nov. 1749 and the tract bordered on his brother's David and Stephen's land and his father's land.

By 9 July 1754 Daniel had moved to a farm in Ashford. On that date he sold 4-3/4 acs., inherited from his brother Stephen's estate, to Peter Chandler for 161 pnds. 10s 9p.

On 27 Sep. 1754, Elizabeth Clark, of Ashford, sold to Daniel of Ashford, her rights to property previously purchased from William Chandler of Thompson and Samuel Chandler of Woodstock.

Daniel sold a 10 ac. lot to his brother-in-law John Mason, which adjoined property Mason already owned. This was recorded in Ashford 19 July 1755.

There were several land transactions in 1757 involving Daniel. On 9 Sep. he sold 54 acs. 27 rods of land in Pomfret to Caleb Grosvenor. This lot abutted other land owned by Daniel and his brother's. On 20 Oct. he sold 10 acs. which was an 1/8th. part of Stephen's farm. Nathan Frink had been renting this farm and on 17 Apr. 1758, William and Susanna Sabin sold their 2/8th.'s share to Frink.

On 8 Sep. 1758 Daniel sold 90 acs. in Ashford for 290 pnds. to Jonathan Burnham, his father-in-law. The land abutted John Mason, dec. and was near the Ashford meeting house. About three weeks later a deed was recorded in Hartford, Daniel's parental settlement "for love and affection which I have and do bear toward my well beloved son Daniel" was a 58 ac. tract in Pomfret valued at 400 pds. old tenor. The deed was written 10 Nov. 1749 and the tract bordered on his brother's David and Stephen's land and his father's land.

By 9 July 1754 Daniel had moved to a farm in Ashford. On that date he sold 4-3/4 acs., inherited from his brother Stephen's estate, to Peter Chandler for 111 pds. 10s 9d.

On 27 Sep. 1764, Elizabeth Clark, of Ashford, sold to Daniel of Ashford, her rights to property previously purchased from William Chandler of Thompson and Samuel Chandler of Woodstock.

Daniel sold a 10 ac. lot to his brother-in-law John Mason, which adjoined property Mason already owned. This was recorded in Ashford 19 July 1755.

There were several land transactions in 1757 involving Daniel. On 9 Sep. he sold 56 acs. 27 rods of land in Pomfret to Caleb Grosvenor. This lot adjoined other land owned by Daniel and his brother's. On 20 Oct. he sold 10 acs. which was an 1/8th. part of Stephen's farm. Nathan Frink had been renting this farm and on 17 Apr. 1758, William and Susanna Sabin sold their 2/8th.'s share to Frink.

On 8 Sep. 1758 Daniel sold 90 acs. in Ashford for 290 pds. to Jonathan Dunham, his father-in-law. The land abutted John Mason, dec. and was near the Ashford meeting house. About three weeks later a deed was recorded in Hartford, Conn. whereby Daniel purchased 90 acs. for 300 pnds. from Jonathan Burnham. This was probably land that Jonathan had inherited through his grandfather Thomas Burnham. This area incorporated in 1783 as East Hartford.

The exact reason for this land exchange is not clear, but perhaps Daniel was just ready to move on to other things. He did continue farming after moving to East Hartford, but he also had a stone quarry and was a merchant. There was said to be copper mines in this area also. The homestead was about 6 mis. east of the Connecticut River and a ½ mi. north of Buckland Corners.

Daniel purchased other property in E. Hartford including 32 acs. on 26 Nov. 1783. On 13 July 1784 he purchased 1½ acs. of a nine acre lot which was Samuel Bidwell's share, for 40s. One 15 Jan. 1789 he was one of 29 purchasers of a 19½ ac. lot, his cost being 25 pnds.

Daniel served in the 1st. Co., 11th. Conn. Reg. during the Rev. He did not live long enough to apply for a pension so the details of his service are not known. Some records say he was a Pvt. and others say he gained the rank of Capt. A printed account of James Bellows (382) calls him Capt.

Daniel died intestate. Daniel, jr. and Violet were named the administrators of his estate.

Violet signed a quit claim deed to all her rights and interest in the estate 25 Feb. 1792 to her son Daniel for 50 pnds. Daniel, jr's. brother and sister's sold their estate rights to him about the same time.

Later that same year (12 Nov.) Daniel, jr. leased out half of the old house and a half lot (15 acs.) to Violet for the rest of her natural life.¶

On 1 Mar. 1794, Daniel, jr. and Violet leased to Libbeus Andrews (388) the whole quarry, shops and house lot for a term of three years.¶

A deed of 11 Oct. 1798 shows Violet selling a 14 ac. lot with a mansion house to Aaron Buckland for $128. She states this is the whole of her right in the estate of Daniel, sr. Abijah was a witness to this deed.¶

Violet sold the 32 ac. lot in East Hartford for $32 on 5 Apr. 1803. Sabra Chandler witnessed this deed.¶

Violet lived with her daughter Hannah in Williston, VT. for awhile and also was in Lebanon, N.H. a short while.

When she returned to E. Hartford she tried to reclaim her property but was denied it by the courts and lived her later years at the mercy of the town.

Violet's parents lived with her and Daniel, sr. in their later years. Violet's father, Jonathan Burnham, is buried with her and Daniel at Buckland Cem. but no record of her Mother has been found yet.

Daniel, sr.'s obituary appeared in the 14 Jan. 1790 issue of the Hartford Courant but it merely stated the place and date of death.

This is the document authored by his Uncle James Putnam (287). One fourth of the 200 registered voters signed it, but it was not done within the rules of a town meeting. It greatly angered the Whigs and they voted and ordered him to obliterate, erase or otherwise deface the said recorded protest and the names thereunto subscribed. He was to make them illegible and unintelligible. At an open town meeting Clark did as required. His fingers were then dipped into the ink and drawn across the page. He later returned to Worcester and engaged in trade. He was a small statured person and dressed oddly, often wearing red small clothes. He was the subject of many jeers and taunts, but he always had a snappy retort.

He set up his law practice in Patersham, Mass. where his family owned considerable property. He fled to Halifax, N.S. in 1776 to join other Loyalists. He was proscribed and banished in 1778. Knowing he was proscribed in Mass., he joined a group to get a land grant in Nova Scotia and each member was to receive 5,000 acs., but this project was squelched. He was in a corp of volunteer Loyalists in N.Y. which saw much active service. He was allowed to return to Mass. under a license on 2 Nov. 1784. He went back to Petersham and engaged in trade, but gave it because of ill health and returned to Worcester. His citizenship was restored on 14 Feb. 1789. He never had the energy to resume his law profession and lived his last years with his sister Mary Seaver. He was known as a pleasant person, was a good singer and was called upon at many social parties. He had a good mind, a lively imagination and a cheerful disposition. Had his course of life drawn him differently, he probably would have been a distinguished character.

At that time the students were ranked according to the dignity of the family and William was placed in the highest class. He was a 2nd. Lt. in the Loyal Assoc. of Volunteers of Boston under Francis Green in 1775. He fled to Halifax in 1776. He was proscribed in 1778. William returned to Mass. after the Rev. In his estate inventory were 7 pairs of silk hose valued at 14s, plated shoe buckles at 6s and two pairs of velvet breeches.

410. Samuel b. 25 Feb. 1757 d. 26 Oct. 1813, Woodstock, VT. dnm. Not caring for farming, Samuel with his brothers Thomas and Charles, secured credit, purchased goods and imports and set up stores. They had outlets in Boston, Mass., Chester, Putney, Woodstock and Royalton, VT. Benjamin Swan was a partner in the Woodstock, VT. store known as Swan and Chandler. Among their goods for sale were: rum, brandy, anniseed, loaf sugar, Bchea tea, preff'd tobacco, 10 penny nails and India cottons in different widths and prices. Samuel also owned 18 or 20 asheries. His business connections were immense for the times, throughout the state and into Can. Samuel was offered $100,000 for the asheries in 1812, but he preferred shipping the ashes to England as planned. The ships were delayed by ice and other problems, and when finally arriving, the value had gone down and the Chandler business along with it. The ashes were important to Eng. in the manufacture of glass and soft soap. At his death, all of his businesses were closed and his estate was valued at $66,000, but there were many claims against it. He always welcomed his friends with a social drink and the best of havanas but succumbed to no excesses.

John was the third in line of this family to become Judge in Worcester Co. serving 1762 to 1774. Prior to that he served the town as treasurer 1753-60; Sheriff 1751-62 and town clerk 1764-68.

He was a Col. in the militia and served in the French Wars. He was in the company sent to the relief of Fort William Henry, near Lake George, N.Y., in 1757.

Possibly one third of the population of America, at the time of the Rev. was loyal to the King of England and chose to suffer the hardships and privations of defeat rather than renounce their former allegiance.

The political party of the Loyalists was called the Tory party and it's adherents were called Tories.

The pre-Rev. conflict was violent in Worcester. John's family was embroiled in it. For protection, John fled to Boston in 1774. His family sent him silver plate while there, to sell, to support himself.

When he left home he had no intention of leaving the country, but as the war intensified, he again fled. This time he went to Halifax along with British troops. He was shipwrecked on the way and narrowly escaped with his life.

A Philadelphia newspaper published the following by an anonymous writer: "Awake, Americans, to sense your danger. No time to be lost. Instantly banish every Tory from among you....Banishment, perpetual banishment, should be their lot."

John was proscribed and banished along with his sons Rufus and William, brother-in-law James Putnam and his wife's nephews Samuel and Dr. William Paine. If they returned to this country and were caught, they faced a death penalty.

If Mary wished to retain her dower rights, she had to remain in Worcester, which she did. Since six of their children were still minors it was prudent to do so.

The Whig Commissioners took an inventory of John's household. The large household had four servants including one black maid. Some household goods and the house were left for Mary, but the rest was auctioned off. It is said the very chair she was sitting on was auctioned, but she bore it well and never lost her dignity.

The property confiscated is now a part of the most valuable land in Worcester, Mass.

John was treated harshly for his opinions and loyalties, just as though he had borne arms in the field.

By July of 1776 John was in England, never to return to his Worcester home.

The sacrifice of property and possessions was large. He gave the amount of loss as 11,067 pnds. sterling and another 6,000 pnds. for loss of business and office. The Commissioners of Loyalist Claims considered this such a modest claim that he was allowed the full amount and there upon gained the nickname of "The Honest Refugee".

In England he was spoken of as being cheerful, friendly, kind and engaging in manner as well as hospitable. He was an enterprising merchant and successful businessman.

He is buried at Islington, an iron fence and slab mark the spot. The tombstone is inscribed: "Here lies the body of John Chandler, esq. formerly of Worcester, Mass. Bay, North America, who died 26 Sept. A.D. 1800 in the 80th. year of his age." It is amusing to note that our country was still not refered to as the United States.

His oil portrait, believed to have been painted about 1784, was preserved at the American Antiquarian Society in Worcester. It may still exist there.

Mary's obituary reflects upon her as an excellant woman.

Chandler Bullock* wrote: "For his opinions he gave up forever his native land, his family life, his official prominence, the use of his fortune, his tranquility in his old age. Right or wrong, there was a fibre in such a man that is absent in most."

Gardiner served as a Maj. and Lt. Col. in the French Wars. He was at the surrender of Fort William Henry in 1757.

As with many other's of his family, he was very active in his community's affairs. He was the Worcester Co. treasurer eight years; county sheriff, suceeding his brother John in 1762, and a selectman.

His home was suppose to be very grand.

He was a Loyalist. Because of an address in behalf of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas in 1774, he was compelled to sign a recantation. In time he regained the confidence of the community and was able to live undisturbed.

The yet to be President, John Adams, was a close friend of this branch of the family. He wrote in a diary: "the Chandler's had great influence in the county until they took the British side and lost position".

He and two partners opened the first apothecary shop in Worcester. He learned the art of innoculation in 1773, but the town would not allow him to practice it. He was suppose to have helped James Putnam (287) pen the Worcester Protest directed against the dumping of tea in Boston. He was on the town list of "obdurate Tories". He fled Salem in Sep. 1774 after his father was mobbed, and sailed to London with Rufus Chandler (405). He returned in May to find he was in danger of hanging, so he returned to London. While there he obtained his M.D. He was appointed apothecary to the "Detrached Hosptial, North America". His wife and daughter joined him and they went to Newport, R.I. and then to N.Y. He was the Clerk of courts for Worcester Co. 1751 to 1774. He also served as the Registrar of Probate and Deeds.

Timothy was one of the founders of the First Unitarian Church under the pastorate of Rev. Aaron Bancroft. (415)

Just before the Rev. War, he started building "The Oaks". Because of his Loyalist leanings, he left Worcester during the war. He returned soon after the close of the war, but died before he saw the finish of his elegegant new home.

James was rebellious and unruly while attending Harvard. During his freshman year he was remonstrated publicly for wearing his hat inside and scuffling with a senior over the matter. In his sophomore year, he was fined for drinking prohibited liquers.

He finally settled down and graduated in 1746. He read law with Edmund Trowbridge, opening his own office in Worcester in 1749. For 20 yrs. he was the only trained lawyer in Worcester. He in turn had a law student, who gained national fame--John Adams.

James was appointed Lt. Col. of the militia 24 Sep. 1756 and became a Maj. a year later. He commanded 300 men from Col. Chandler's regiment on a march to Westfield.

He had become a J.P. 11 Jan. 1758. He served a term as selectman and one as an assessor. He served these offices as a matter of proper duty, not with enthusiasm.

He became very distinguished in his profession and was recommended as a very proper person for any vacant Crown appointment in the Colonies. He was offered the office of Attorney General in 1768 but declined it. He accepted the office in 1774, but the war created other problems for him and the post did him little good.

He wrote the "Worcester Protest" in 1774 which was printed in newspapers and recorded in the town records*. It protested against "the riotous and seditious actions of the evil minded and ill disposed person who, under the disguise of patriotism, falsely declare themselves the friends of liberty and intend to reduce all things to a state of tumult, disorder and confusion". This was all in reaction to the dumping of the tea in Boston Harbor.

The madness and violence in Worcester became so bad by Aug. of 1774 that James found staying there would be unsafe, so he left for Boston. He had said "one year ago the taking up and hanging 20, perhaps 10, or 5 of the leaders of this rebellion would have stopped the whole mischief".

On 5 July 1775, James was commissioned to command a company of Loyal Associates in Boston. He continued this duty in N.Y. from Oct. 1776 until he left fo Eng. in Dec. 1779.

He also was obliged to sell his silver plate in N.Y. to support his family.

When his property was confiscated, the inventory showed it was considerable. He made a claim to the Loyalist Commission for 18,256 pnds. 12s and was allowed 4,725 pnd. for it.

James' campaigned for the appointment as Chief Justice of Nova Scotia or New Brunswick. He did not gain this, but was appointed Senior Judge and member of the Council of N.B. at a salary of 300 pnds. a year.

He left his family in Eng. and sailed for N.B. He wrote that the country appeared very good and would make a flourishing province.

In a letter to a brother in Mass. he said he was hoping to be settled in N.B. for the rest of his life. He would like to see his brother and friends, but would not wish to live in the States again.

When James's family joined him in Apr. 1785, they found him happy and performing his duties of council. He was fully convinced he had shown good judgement in his actions when the disorders broke out in Mass.

He wrote friends in Mass. with a sarcastic tone saying he felt he was much better off than they were and their Revolution gained them nothing good. But he did wish they¶ would pay what they justly owed him.

He gave a forceable argument and had excellant judgement. His wit and humor was irresistable, but when need be, he had a stern and austere personality. He judged with as much fairness and justness in N.B. as he had in Mass.

Although he seemed happy enough with his new life we find this written of him: "Strange events that led to one of the giants of the American Bar to become an outlaw and exile, broken in fortune and spirit whilce his struggling pupil--elevated step-by-step the same course of events--became President of the Nation".§

Joshua graduated from Yale in 1747 and then studied law.

He was a leader in the civil affairs of New Haven. He served as a selectman for several terms by 1774. He was elected to the General Assembly in May 1768 and served until 1772. He again served in 1774-75. He also became a J.P. in 1769.

Joshua was one of the first on New Haven's Committee of Correspondance of 1774 but when the war actually started, he chose to side with England.

Joshua, with son-in-law Amos Botsford, owned a whole block of good property in New Haven. He also owned an estate and salt marsh a few miles out of town.

We have seen several examples so far, of cousins being at opposite views on the independance of this nation. But this is the first example of one family's brothers and father and son, torn apart by their beliefs.

The British troops only stayed in New Haven a short time after William and Thomas guided them in. When they left, all the Chandler's, except John, went along.

Joshua valued his confiscated property at 30,000 pnds. but the Whigs inventoried it at 3,755 pnds. and auctioned it for 3,050 pnds.

Joshua and several of his family were in a boat going to St. John, N.B. to receive their settlements on their Loyalist Claims. While in the Bay of Fundy, approaching the harbor, a violent snowstorm hit. The boat capsized. Joshua made it to shore but fell from a precipice during the excitement. His daughter Elizabeth died shortly afterwards from the effects of exposure, cold and exhaustion.

Joshua wrote a letter in 1784 from London, that he still had strong affection for this country.

Thomas graduated from Yale in 1745, received his M.A. in 1753 and then earned his Dr. of Divinity from Oxford in 1766.

He taught school in Woodstock while studying theology with Dr. Samuel Johnson.

When he was first called to serve a church, he was still too young to be ordained.

St. John's Church in Elizabeth,* N.J. installed him as their catechist in Oct. 1747, as their rector had recently died. Thomas received 10 pnd. a year for this. He also did mission work in the outlying areas. For the year 1762 he estimated he had traveled more than 3,000 mis. and preached 200 sermons filling this duty.

In June of 1751 he went to England and was ordained there. Upon returning to Elizabeth be became rector of St. John's. He then received 30 pnds. sterling from the Society and another 60 pnd.° N.J. currency from the people.

Thomas contracted smallpox in 1757 during an epidemic. He suffered ill effects for nearly 3 yrs. and carried many scars on his face the rest of his life. Otherwise, he was a large, portly, fine looking person with blue eyes and a strong commanding voice.

His Loyalist battle had a slightly different slant than his cousin's.

The controversy between the advocates of the Church of England and those who wished to break away heightened. This developed a "pamphlet controversy" between Dr. Thomas and a Dr. Chauncy. Thomas felt Chauncy missrepresented the cause and they spent three years writing long titled pamphlets to refudiate each other. The dissenters wanted to establish and American Episcopate, of course.

Many of Dr. Thomas's church members were dissenters which made matters most difficult. He felt it his duty to take an active part in defending the Church and Crown, but could not tolerate the violent feelings against them.

By May 1775 he found it wise to take refuge on a British man-of-war that was in the N.Y. harbor. He left his family at the rectory in Elizabeth and spent the next ten years in England alone.

He received 200 pnds. annual allowance from the British Government for his "merit and services".

As the war was closing, Dr. Thomas was recommended for the position as head of an episcopate in Nova Scotia. There were nearly 30,000 refugees there, so England was rather anxious to settle a church there.

Thomas became ill with a cancer on the face and could no longer wait to see if the episcopate would be his. He returned to Elizabeth and his family. Finally in 1786 things were settled and the position offered to him, but he was no longer well enough to accept.

Much damage was done to the church during the war, but it was repaired and being used when Dr. Thomas returned to Elizabeth.

He remained the rector and nominal head of his church in Elizabeth but rarely performed any duties. He resided at the rectory until his death.

He had held hopes nearly to the end of the war that the Royal authority would again rule America.

Jane received an annual pension from the British government after the death of Thomas.

On 30 Jan. 1754 William acknowledged he had received the deed to the property his father willed and would provide his three sisters with household goods as stipulated in the will.

He received 41 acs. of land in Woodstock where his house was already standing and a wood lot of 60 acs. in Killingly, from his father. Besides providing for his sisters, he was to give each 50 pnd. when they came of age.

Capt. William Hodges willed Sarah 13 pnd. 6s 4p at age 18 or when she had issue. He asked his son Abijah to support Sarah if she would live with him and to supply her with two suits of clothes suitable to her age. If Abijah didn't oblige his father, he would not receive his share of his father's estate!

On 19 June 1758 he quit claimed to Hon. Uncle Samuel Chandler, 5 tracts of land for 5 pnds.

By 1761 he had moved to Petersham, Mass. While there he was the representative to the Legislature, 1769, and surveyed several VT. towns

Theophilus "the surveyor" purchased the 7 ac 5 rod, with dwelling and barn, dower right of Mary Hodge Chandler (271). This property was adjacent to his own.

He returned to Woodstock about 1776.

His father willed him part of the farm in Killingly--about 200 acs. He also received the surveying instruments and a "book out of which surveying is taught".

Theophilus also built a fine home on Chandler Hill in Thompson.

Winthrop studied portrait painting in Boston. As with many artists, he was not particularly encouraged to continue with the portraits. He did manage to paint many of the family and there were many preserved. Copies were reproduced in the "Genealogies of the Woodstock Families". He was also a housepainter and that is most likely how he supported his family.

As his inheritance from his father, he received the rest of the homestead not given to his brother Samuel. But he was to share his portion with his brother Henry after their Mother was done with it. They were both to pay their sisters 200 pnds. within two years of coming into the possession of their portion.

He lived for some years in Worcester, Mass. but spent his last years with his brother Theophilus in the house on Chandler Hill.

His obituary in the Boston Chronicle ungraciously called him a housepainter, never mentioning the many portraits.

After his death, a manuscript he had written on botany was discovered. He described and drew much of the plant life and growth of the area. It was in great detail and very well done.

Charles was an excellant student and zealous in his pursuit of knowledge. He was also known for being punctual, eloquent, warm and sincere. He was a philanthropist and much respected. He graduated from Harvard in 1763, read law and opened his office at his ancestral homestead in S. Woodstock.

He also was involved in the town affairs. He was appointed in 1775 by the General Assembly, to employ two news carriers to go from Fairfield to Woodstock, "so as to arrive in Hartford every Sat. and forward all intelligence through the country with all convenient speed".

He was a member of the Legislature in 1779, 80, 83 and 84. In 1780 he was appointed the Judge of Probate for the Pomfret district. He was a member of the committee that discussed the boundry between R.I. and Conn.

During the Revolution Charles was on the Committee of Correspondance and the Committee of Inspection in Woodstock.

He kept his home in Pomfret and was building a new house with the aid of a Negro who he had cleared of a murder charge. The Negro was working out his fee. Charles suddenly collapsed and died and never saw the finish of his home.

During the Rev. he was in Capt. Caleb Clarks Co. (11th. Conn. Reg.) and was on the march to West Chester, N.Y.

He was made a Deacon in 1795.

On 10 Nov. 1749 William purchased 10 acs. of land for 100 pnds. from Joseph, sr. and Susanna Chandler. The land was bounded by Stephen and Daniel Chandler's land and his own land. On 28 Nov. the same year, he purchased another 5½ acs. from Joseph for 200 pnds. That tract was bounded by land he sold to Joseph, jr. that same day. Joseph, sr. reserved the right to pass through William's newly acquired land to get to his own wood lot.

Sabra gave a written testimony for Daniel, jr.'s Rev. pension application. She stated that her family had lived 3 mis. from the Chandler's and she had known them most of her life. She also stated that Abijah became ill and returned home from his military duty and his brother Daniel replaced him. She said Daniel was then hired by Benjamin Mann, her brother, and served 3 mos. for him. Sabra read Hannah Kimball's (387) statement and agreed with the facts in it.

Abijah was still in E. Hartford 16 Nov. 1787 as he purchased 2 parcels of land, totaling 15 acs. on that date.

A 16 Feb. 1792 deed shows Abijah's residence as Lebanon, Grafton Co. N.H. He then quit claimed all his rights to the estate of his father to his brother Daniel, for 50 pnds. Again on 8 Aug. of that year he quit claimed to Daniel all rights to two small parcels in E. Hartford which he had purchased earlier with Luther Gilman.

Abijah was in business with Daniel taking goods to Lebanon and trading them at the outlet of Enfield Pond. This was an unsuccessful business.*

Abijah was the host for a meeting Oct. 1803 of the townsmen of Lebanon. They discussed and voted on building roads and bridges in town.

In the fall of 1806, Abijah and others from Lebanon went to Lawrence Co. N.Y. he took up a farm near Nicholville and his family joined him the following spring. Sabra was the first white woman in that town.

Abijah kept a tavern two miles east of Nicholville on Malone Rd. He also worked as a stone mason and built the gristmill in Nicholville, on the east branch of the St. Regis River.

He became a J.P. and was an original member of the Baptist Society which formed in 1818.

Daniel was only 15 yrs. old when he first entered the military service. His older brother, Abijah, was drafted to serve 3 mos. at Fort Trumbull near New London, Conn. Abijah became ill and called on Daniel to substitute for his time. Daniel entered service about 15 July 1779 and served garrison duty for 2 mos. and 24 or 25 days.

A year later, Benjamin Mann, a neighbor of the Chandler's was drafted to serve 3 mos. Mann called on Daniel to serve as his substitute.

In July or Aug. of 1781 another draft was held at E. Hartford and Daniel was drafted for himself. They marched from Hartford to Fort Trumbull and were stationed there under Capt. Loomis. Fort Trumbull fell to the British and the troops retreated to Fort Griswold. There under the leadership of Gen. Benedict Arnold, many of the troops were indiscriminately bayoneted and killed. Fate was with Daniel as he was on a boat upriver. He was with a command going for wood and fascines* for the Fort. He thus escaped becoming a prisoner of war or sharing the fate of death.

Daniel was residing in St. Armand, Can. when he applied for a pension 29 May 1833. He made application in VT. and Pennel Leavens and Jasper Chaffee of Barkshire attested they knew Daniel to be of good character.

His sister Hannah who was living in St. Lawrence Co. N.Y., gave written testimony recollecting the times and places of Daniel's service. Sabra Chandler, the wife of Abijah and sister of Benjamin Mann, gave her written testimony which concurred with what Hannah had given.

Daniel most likely grew up on his father's farm and assisted in the stone quarry.

Daniel, sr. left no will, but Daniel, jr. along with his mother Violet, were made executors of the estate 12 Jan. 1792.

Daniel bought out the other heirs of the estate in E. Hartford, including his Mother's dower right. On 11 June 1792 Daniel, jr. sold two parcels in E. Hartford. The first contained 120 acs. with two dwelling houses, a barn and other buildings and was near the Windsor town line. He sold this to George Buckland. The other was a 12 ac. plot nearby.

On 12 Nov. 1792, for 100 pnds. , he leased back to Violet for the rest of her natural life, ½ of the old house and ½ of a 30 ac. lot. There were two other lots also leased to her at this time. The house she was to receive was the old house Daniel, sr. lived in and was now on land owned by George Buckland. Violet was to have the house moved to the 15 acs. and have it in good repair within one year.

On the same day, Violet and Daniel, jr. sold another 100 ac. lot that was adjacent to Dan's land and the stone shop.

On 3 Nov. 1792 Daniel, jr. quit claimed any rights he might have in the piece of land in E. Hartford called 5 Miles, to Timothy Burr. On 12 Nov., Timothy quit claimed his rights back to Daniel for 290 pnds.

Daniel, jr. had a partner in business but details of the name, time and type of business is not known. What is known, is that the business failed.

On 30 Jan. 1794, Daniel and Violet leased to Libbeus Andrews (388), for 72 pnds. a year, "the whole of their quarry shop, home lot, the barn and part of the house now standing on the said home lot---that is to say, excepting the parlor and south bedroom, privileges in the kitchen, chambers, cellar and of passing in and out." The deed also specified Andrews was to have wood sufficient for one fire only and it was to be cut from the "Benton" lot. Andrews was to harvest

* - 3 to 4ft. sticks bundled together for construction of fortresses, earthworks or crossing trenches

a crop of rye, thrash, clean it up and return half to Violet and Daniel. A horse wagon, sleigh and harness, all the quarry tools and farming utensils went with the deal. The above mentioned reserved parts of the house was for Violet and Daniel's use. Andrews was not to lease that to anyone. The lease was to run three years starting 1 Mar. 1794.

About this time Daniel, jr. went to Lebanon and engaged in a merchandising venture with his brother Abijah. They were not being particularly successful when a boat load of their goods went over the falls and all was lost, including two men who drowned.

While this was all going on, a hint of Daniel trying to gain more cash is in a deed of 21 Aug. 1797. Daniel of Lebanon, sold his 32 ac. lot which he had inherited from his father, to Charles Hopkins for 48 pnds. But if Daniel could repay the money with interest within the year, the deed would be null and void.

In 1798, Violet sold the property that Daniel had leased back to her. She lived a time with a daughter in Williston, VT. and awhile in Lebanon.

By 16 Jan. 1799 Daniel was broke, had lost the E. Hartford property and was warned out of Lebanon. He went to St. Armand, Can. and Polly followed Feb. 10. He worked there at brick laying and was a master builder. Later he again acquired a farm.

I have in my possession a series of letters written in 1845, 46 and 47 by Daniel, jr. to his sister Susannah Andrews in Homer, N.Y. (388)

They give insight to the regrets and sorrows and then composure of the events of his life. They also make it somewhat clearer what events occured, but still leave so many unanswered questions. The follwoing are some quotes from these letters:

"12 July 1845 - My Dear Brother and Sister, who is the only one I can address as Brother and I fear the only one as sister as I have not heard from our sister Hannah in a long time"...."highly pleased to learn that I have a sister that remembered that she once had a brother"...."when I once think of our once happy family circle (which is very often) what we were at that time and what and where we are now"...."our once pleasant home, our early apples our great yellow plums our beautiful large grapes and handsome fish pond and the finest spring of water in the world"...."I understand you to say you have been to Hartford since our Mother died. I wish you to inform me whence and when she died and whence buried and whether she suffered for any of the comforts of life in her latter days"...."I came into this country very poor as much we could do to live from day to day. You will suppose I cared but little about seeing any person I ever saw before thinking what I was once and what I was then. You know my dear sister that I lost my property and not by my own fault you know we had a sister in law that was poor and proud when she got to Lebanon she was a merchant with a batchlor brother to assist one whole family of Nieces. That was not very profatable. After our Fathers death I returned to Connecticut, if I had then settled off with my Brother and assert Trad. it would have bin well for me but I continued sending him goods without any remittence till I was obliged to sell the old farm then went to Lebanon to see if Could not save something. I got a boatload valued at 15 hundred dollars, all went over the falls, 2 men drowned. all lost then largely concerned in still work that took fire and burnt to the ground 15 hundred more after all that loosing one year then what I think enough to dishearten any one man, then turned out and settled all our debts and nothing left when I arrived in Canada all we had except our waring cloes was not worth over 100 dollars. the interest of my money now is 150 dollars a year which is just enough to saport us and the principal leave to the next generation."

Daniel mentions his eyesight failing and that sister Hannah was also blind. He excuses himself in each letter for the slanting lines and poor writing. All things considered, I found the grammer and spelling was quite correct enough, but the punctuation or lack of it, left much to be desired.

We always have better hindsight than foresight, but Daniel had come to terms and had faith in the Lord. He wrote in 1846: "although I enjoy a good state of health now have had a very poor turn was taken ill very sudden the 7th. Nov. last, the first of my riding out was on New Years day, for four weeks of the time kept my room and bed most the time. Had a Doctor Shady, but through the mercy of God has seen fit to spare me a little longer for what purpose am unable to say as I tell them, I have done all the good and the hurt I expect to do..."

On 7 May 1833 Hannah gave a sworn statement at St. Lawrence Co. N.Y. to aid Daniel, jr. in obtaining his pension for Rev. service.

Her statement included the fact that she lived with her father Daniel Chandler at East Hartford during the Revolutionary War. She also remembered very well the summer of 1779 when her brother Abijah was drafted to serve as a militia man but sent word back in a few days that he was unwell and her brother Daniel went instead. She also stated Daniel served for Benjamin Mann and for himself.

Libbeus was a minor when his father died. The 1771 birthdate originally thought to be his, is not correct. A Probate Court record of 28 Mar. 1780 shows him to be over 14 yrs. of age and choosing his Mother to be his guardian. On 15 May 1780 the court records show a division of Benjamin Andrews estate to include half to the minor heirs and half to an Elijah Andrews, probably Libbeus's uncle. The "Andrews Memorial" states that in May of 1780, Libbeus received a double portion of his father's estate, but this record was not personally seen.

Libbeus worked for his father-in-law in the stone quarry. On 30 Jan. 1794 he leased from Daniel, jr. and Violet Chandler the whole of the quarry, buildings and lots.*

In the midst of, in spite of, or perhaps because of, Daniel, jr.'s financial problems, Libbeus and Susannah moved to Cortland Co. in late 1799 or early 1800.

Rufus graduated from Harvard in 1766 and studied law with his Uncle James Putnam (287). He was admitted to the bar in 1768 and opened an office in Worcester. He practiced there until Sep. 1774 when the courts were closed. He was accurate, methodical and as economical with his clients money as his own.

In 1774 he publicly protested the "riotous, disorderly and seditious practices" of the Worcester mob "under the disguise of patriotism".

He went to Eng. in late 1774 but soon returned and served with the Association of Loyalists at the seige of Boston.

He went to Halifax, N.S. in 1776 and was proscribed and banished in 1778.

Eleanor went with Rufus to Halifax but left Elizabeth with her Grandmother Chandler. Mary used part of Rufus's estate for the support of Elizabeth, but the remainder, appraised at 820 pnds. 9s was confiscated.

Grandmother Mary Chandler died in 1783 and Eleanor near that time. Rufus then had Elizabeth join him.

He went back and forth among various Canadian towns and Eng. trying to find a place for himself and eventually his daughter.

Rufus and his father were in Nova Scotia in July 1786 but found the weather disagreeable and as there were already so many starving lawyers there, Rufus thought it would be impossible to make a living.

He finally returned to London and settled there and Elizabeth returned to Worcester and married.

Rufus claimed 287 pnds. per annum as his loss of income during the war and was allowed 240 pnds. and a pension of 120 pnds.

He was appointed 2 June 1783 to be an examiner of Loyalist claims.

Being a Loyalist, his property valued at 256 pnds. 1s 10p was confiscated.

He made acknowledgements satisfactory to his townsmen who voted that since he was sorry for his past conduct, they would treat him as a friend and neighbor as long as he should behave well. It is probable that he was able to regain his property and possessions that were confiscated.

He lived in Brattleboro, VT. where he was a J.P. 1789-95. He then moved to Hinsdale, N.H.

His father-in-law, Timothy Ruggles, was also a Loyalist, a lawyer and a tavernkeeper. He died in 1798 in Digby, N.S. at age 87.

Gardiner's will dated 7 June 1811 gave: The heirs of his daughter Sarah personal things which had been her Mother's such as a looking glass and books. Royal Marble Chandler, an adopted son*, received all of the real estate and wearing apparel. But half of all this would belong to his Mother during her life plus $100 in cash. The rest of Gardiner's estate was to be divided in three equal shares between Sarah's heirs, Elizabeth and Charles. The estate was valued at 569 pnds. 8s 9p.

Aaron graduated from Harvard in 1778 and was ordained 1 Feb. 1788.

He was rejected as a minister at E. Windsor, Conn. in 1783, but preached the fall of that year in Worcester. He returned to Worcester a year later (Oct. 1784-Jan. 1785) and filled the pulpit for the ailing minister. At the death of the regular minister, the town refused to settle Aaron as their minister or to support two societies.

Aaron then supported his family by taking in pupils and boarders.

In 1825 he joined a group of young liberals to form the American Unitarian Assoc. and he served as President until 1836.

Lucretia was to have possessed a great vigor of mind and spirit.

William went to Hanover about 1775, built a house and then returned to Pomfret to marry.

He was a merchant in Keene, N.H. for awhile, then purchased 200 acs. in Hanover to farm.

In Apr. 1799, William and thirteen other families formed a Moravian style community. They were to share all things and William's house and barns were the center of operations. Since he was the owner, he took a larger share of the crops. The venture lasted no more than a few years. Many members, led by his brother Henry, voted to disband because of the discontent.

William also served as town clerk of Hanover and was a clerk for the Baptist Church.

During the Canadian Rebellion of 1837 he kept a tavern at Frelighsburg Village and there supposedly "made money as fast as he could take it in".

He later farmed 300 acs. about 1½ miles south of the village. His father called him the "strongest handed" when comparing his farming abilities to his brother Harlow's abilities.

When Horace was 61, his son Linus took over the active part of the farm, although Lydia continued to supervise the large dairy.

He ran once for Parliament in Can. but did not win. His neighbors often came to him for counsel and settlement of small disputes.

George entered Harvard at the age of thirteen. He then went to Gottingen University in German, which was a rather unusual event for those times. He pursued theology and philology and received a Dr. of philosophy and a M.A. in Sept. 1820.

He was not successful at preaching so he accepted a position to teach Greek at Harvard. He taught from 1822 to 1833.

He authored the first comprehensive history of the United States which in contained in ten vols. The first volume was printed in 1834 and the full title is "History of the United States From the Discovery of the American Continent to the Present Time".

George was appointed the Sec. of the Navy by President Polk. He was very instrumental in seeing his dreams come true with the establishment of the Navel Academy at Annapolis, MD. in 1845.

In Sep. 1846 he was appointed the U.S. Minister to Great Britain and served in that post three yrs. He was later appointed Minister to Berlin and served there 1867 to 1874.

He had a winter home in N.Y. for many years, but after his return from Berlin he settled in Washington, D.C. His summer retreat was at Newport, R.I.

Although Philemon was raised in Andover, he purchased land in Pomfret, Conn. 8 Oct. 1696 and moved there shortly after. He purchased this land from Thomas and Elizabeth Ruggles who had inherited it from their father.

Philemon was a weaver.

He went to Woodstock in 1699 but stayed there just a short time before returning to Pomfret. He had 600 acs. of what was considered some of the best farm land in Pomfret.

He became clerk for the propriotors of the Mashamoquet Purchase 3 May 1713. He also was a signer of the petition to incorporate Mashamoquet into a town. At a General Court meeting 14 May 1713, the name of the town was changed from Mashamoquet to Pomfret in honor of a town in England.

At the first regular town meeting 7 Dec. 1719, Phlemon was chosen first selectman.

He was a Lt. of the train band (or militia) from 11 May 1714 to May 1721.

Chandler Hill and The South Burying Ground were part of his farm.

Alexander went on a fifteen month whaling voyage in 1850, sailing on the Margaretta out of Boston. He then signed on as 2nd. mate on a merchant ship and soon was promoted to 1st. mate.

After three yrs. of sailing he returned to Pomfret and purchased his grandfather's homestead from the heirs. He rebuilt the neglected farm and worked it.

He joined the 1st. VT. Calvary, Co. E as a 2nd. Lt. He made 1st. Lt. 4 June 1864. The Capt. of that company was killed and Alexander assumed that rank. He and his company were captured at Stoney Creek Station. He did escape and made his way back to the Union lines.

His health suffered from these events but he farmed awhile longer and then went into business in Boston.

Administration of William Cleaves estate was given to Sarah, 1 May 1676. The total worth was 85 pnds. 1s, which included the house, land, wearing apparel, one swine and one cow.

William was under the command of Capt. Samuel Wadsworth and was killed by Indians during the Sudbury fight of King Philip's war.

In some records a fourth mar. to a Mr. Allen is given for Sarah.

Numerous records and several town's records were checked, but I was unable to find any additional information on this family. That is not to say all resources were exhausted, but I only spent the time I deemed practical.
